The New-York Times.

VOL. XVIII.....NO. 5416. NEW-YORK, MONDAY, JANUARY 28, 1869. PRICE FOUR CENTS.

TELEGRAMS.

Greece Rejects the Propositions of the Peace Conference.

Serious Revolutionary Disturbances in Havana and Vicinity.

Citizens Fired Upon by the Military and Several Killed.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Egypt Gives Turkey to Understand the Extent of War.

Constantinople, Saturday, Jan. 23.

The Viceroy of Egypt has placed the Sultan an army of 50,000 men and a fleet in the event of a war.

Admiral Hobart Pasha has sailed with his fleet from the harbor of Syra, the Governor of the Island having promised that the sailors of Greece shall not be permitted to leave the port.

Paris, Sunday, Jan. 24.

The Gaulois says the Greek Government has rejected the declaration of the Conference of Paris.

FRANCE.

Interview Between the Emperor and the Members of the Chinese Embassy.

Paris, Sunday, Jan. 24.

The Chinese Embassy to-day had an audience with the Emperor Napoleon. They proceeded to the Palace of the Tuileries, where they were received with the courtesies usually extended to diplomatic representatives of high rank, but without military honors, and were ushered into the presence of the Emperor. The Minister was accompanied by the Prince Imperial and by the Marquis DE LA VALETTE, the Minister of War.

Mr. BURLINGAME, addressing the Emperor, said he hoped France would receive China as a sister. France had hitherto enjoyed all the privileges accorded by China to the European Powers. China now took upon herself the duties of civilization and of international courtesy.

The Emperor, in reply, expressed his satisfaction at seeing China take such a great step, and said he would be pleased to cooperate with her representatives. He referred to the commercial advantages likely to arise from closer relations, and concluded with a general congratulation.

All the members of the Embassy were pleased with their reception.

When the Marquis DE LA VALETTE personally introduced Mr. BURLINGAME, the latter expressed his acknowledgments at finding an American acting as an Ambassador of China, to which Mr. BURLINGAME replied in a happy manner; and a long conversation ensued between the Emperor and the Chief Ambassador.

Messrs. BROWN and DISTRANGE, the Secretaries of Legation, were then presented to the Emperor, when Mr. BROWN formally laid in the hands of the Minister of War the credentials of the Ambassadors from the Emperor of China. When this ceremony had been performed, the interview terminated.

The Ambassadors were subsequently received by the Empress Eugenie, when Mr. BURLINGAME took occasion to convey the felicitations of the Emperor of China to Her Majesty and to the Imperial family.

SPAIN.

Spain Will Not Recognize a Proposition for the Cession of Cuba.

Madrid, Sunday, Jan. 24.

It is announced on official authority that the Provisional Government, believing that it truthfully interprets the feeling of the nation, cannot accept any proposition for the cession of the Island of Cuba.

ITALY.

Parliamentary Debate on the Obnoxious Tax Institutions.

Florence, Sunday, Jan. 24.

Violent debates took place in the Houses of Parliament last week on the question of the Mill tax, the collection of which has lately caused so much serious agitation. The action of the Government was severely criticised by the Opposition.

CUBA.

Revolutionary Riot at Havana—Citizens Fired Upon by the Military—Several Killed.

Havana, Saturday, Jan. 23.

During the performance of the minstrels at the Villa Nueva Theater last night there was an outbreak of a "free Cuban," and many of the audience participated during the revolutionary hymn. A humorous ditty, mixed, and Spanish mixed volunteers and the Police fired upon the people, who returned the fire. Many were wounded on both sides. The police cleared the place between midnight. Sensible men of both parties regret the occurrence at this critical time. More anon will be posted to-day.

The cards to try prisoners for the previous day were issued for Cuba and Fort Ross. Cuba will start to and Fort Ross is destined to the Spanish Guinea.

The Diario says that a riot was attempted last night in the town of Bejucal, opposite Havana. The volunteers were called out, and about that quiet has prevailed.

At about the same time shots were heard near Fort Cabana and Fort Princess Cristina. The firing was kept up until 1 o'clock in the morning, but when the volunteers appeared they fended off quietly.

A disturbance took place to-day in the city, shots were interchanged between the rioters and the volunteers, when tranquility was restored.

Captain-General DULCE has issued a proclamation in which he says that, using force, will be resorted to at all, every opportunity will be embraced upon all occasions of order.

In the jail at the Station last night four persons were killed and wounded. He knows not who to say, owing to the transfer of his wards, but the confusion is now quieting, and no further disturbances are apprehended.

The Banco del Comercio has resumed operations, but, under an arrangement with its creditors, full payment is postponed.

The Spanish Steamer sailed under the Neutral flag.

Havana, Sunday, Jan. 24.

Several political meetings by the volunteers took place, were dispersed. Bodies of troops, mounted and regular, together with the mounted guard of Cabana in the Bosque, were seen during the night.

The Pub Government, which suspended publication some time ago, will not be issued at present. The Pueblo will also be stopped.

Advices to-day report complete tranquility of the city.

Importations—Exportations—Receipts—Transfers—Specie—Exchange—Stocks.

Havana, Saturday, Jan. 23.

This morning about 1,500 colored [illegible] were transported from the city to the ports of Nuevitas and Gibara. Some [illegible] were sent from the city, of which about one-half of the Spanish portion of the town is disarmed. Among those who left the town were Spanish Lieut. Col. [illegible] of the volunteers, Porquera, Lieut. Col. [illegible] of the volunteers of Regla, Lieut. Col. [illegible] of the volunteers of Cerro, and Lieut. Col. [illegible] of the volunteers of Jesus del Monte. Many of the volunteers of Regla and Cerro and Lieut. Col. [illegible] of the volunteers of Jesus del Monte, Lieut. Col. [illegible] of the volunteers of Cerro,

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

RECOLLECTIONS OF PERSONS AND PLACES IN THE WEST. By H. M. BRACKENRIDGE. Philadelphia: LIPPINCOTT & Co.

Autobiography is an attractive style of literature, probably because the very natural feeling of egotism incites a man to write in his most earnest and inspired manner; and the work before us is no exception to a rule so general. It is a very agreeable narrative, having all the interest that social reminiscences and pictures of old times usually possess for the generality of people, especially for the denizens of the localities treated of. Mr. BRACKENRIDGE gives a variety of graphic pictures, first of Pittsburgh in its earlier days and the landmarks of the place; the character of the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers, and their banks and the forest magnates of the lonely and beautiful Ohio; the kind-hearted simplicity of the French settlers in Louisiana, and the circumstances of his own serious and astounding child-life and education; in the midst of man scenes and settlements, and afterward, under the tuition of his austere and formal father, who was himself a lawyer and a literary man, the writer of many pointed pieces, author of a book on Modern Chivalry, and a well-known public character in his day. The author's style is very humorous and happy, the perfection of a narrative manner, and we learn from it that he was born at Pittsburgh in 1786, and sent in his childhood by his father to reside with a French family named BEAUVAIS in North Louisiana. Mr. BEAUVAIS was a tall, dry old French Canadian, with a blue cotton kerchief for head covering, check shirt, knee pantaloons and Indian moccasins. His wife was a good-natured fat lady with a pious disposition and a cheerful and motherly countenance. The following is a picture of their homestead:

"The house of M. BEAUVAIS was a long, low building, with a porch or shed in front and another in the rear; the chimney occupied the centre, dividing the house into two parts, with each a fireplace. One of these served for dining-room, parlor, and principal bedchamber; the other was the kitchen; and each had a bunk or bed-place at the end for the servant chamber or cabinet. There was no loft or ceiling, a pair of stairs being a rare thing in the village. The furniture, excepting the beds and the looking-glass, was of the most common kind, consisting of six armchairs, a rough table on two and some cross-legs. The yard was inclosed with cedar pickets eight or ten feet high, sharpened at the end, and set in the high, pointed form, as represented in the ancient stockade fort. In front the yard was narrow, but in the rear quite spacious, and containing the barn and stables, the negro quarters, and all the necessary offices of a farmery. Adjoining this there was a spacious garden, inclosed with pickets in the same manner as that which fronted the yard. It was in this garden that the greatest variety and the finest vegetables were cultivated, intermingled with flowers and shrubs; on one side of it there was a small orchard, containing a variety of the choicest fruits. The substantial and permanent character of these inclosures is of singular contrast with the slight and temporary nature of the dwellings of the Americans. The house was a ponderous wooden frame, which, instead of being weather-boarded, was filled in with clay and then whitewashed. As to the living, the table was furnished in a very different manner from that of the generality of Americans. With the poorest French, game is necessary as an art well understood. They have game, fish, and vegetables, and prepare in a manner to be wholesome and palatable. Instead of roast and fried, they had soups and fricassees and stews (a dish supposed to be derived from the Africans), and a variety of other dishes. Tea was not used as a beverage, and coffee for breakfast was the privilege of the BEAUVAIS family."

From this description of this house some idea may be formed of the rest of the village. The occupations of the inhabitants were chiefly agricultural, although all were more or less engaged in traffic for peltries with the Indians, or in working the lead-mines in the interior. But few of them were mechanics, and there were but two or three small shops, which retailed a very ordinary assortment. Paper beaver-skins and lead constituted almost the only circulating medium. All politics or discussions of the affairs of a Government were entirely unknown; the Commandant took care of all that sort of thing. But instead of them, the processions and ceremonies of the Church, and the public balls, furnished ample matter for occupation and amusement. Their agriculture was carried on in a field of several thousand acres, in the fertile river-bottom of the Mississippi, inclosed at the common expense, and divided into lots separated by roads natural or permanent boundary."

Young BRACKENRIDGE goes through his rather irregular education and then becomes a lawyer, settling, with his father's assistance, at Baltimore. But he does not seem to have had the laborious industry, or the thoroughgoing political activity, which enables a man to make a figure in that line of life. His mind was, so to speak, mildled over with a pale cast of literary thought which tended to draw him aside from the main purpose, and so, after failing in his effort to obtain a footing in Baltimore, he went to Somerset, then to St. Louis, Baton Rouge, New-Orleans and other places, in the course of several years, reading, meantime, more books of philosophy and literature than of law, surveying with a grand antiquarian interest the ancient mounds of the Mississippi Valley, and poring over the scanty accounts of their origin and first builders which the historians of this country have preserved. He wrote a book on Louisiana, and accompanied MANUEL LISA, the traveler, in his explorations of the Missouri—a journey of which Mr. BRACKENRIDGE has left an account. He watered his stock of law knowledge too much for profit, while his ideas of public men and things were not such as to recommend him to his party—that of the Democracies—to give them their original dignity of style. He says, in his autobiography:

"I was introduced to a sort of Jacobin Club, where BARNABY RICHARDS was the principal personage. He was a Scotchman, and had studied under Dugald Stewart. I was heartily disgusted with the low and illiterate cant, and the merciless cruelty of this priest of Democracy. Nothing could be more intolerant and intolerant than the greater part of this society, let them call themselves Federalists, Democrats, what they please. What a blessing it would be to the people if they could see through the cant of politicians and the motives of those vile party jugglers who switchers! How their pride would be mortified to find themselves used as the instruments of the vilest of men, for the most sordid purposes) while they believe they are governing by their confidence the most eminent patriots of the country, and honest. The only remedy is with the people themselves. They must be on their guard against all combinations, or clubs, or organized party schemes. Meetings ought to be the representative act of the people; no man should dare to influence their choice, under the pretence of giving them correct information, unless bringing them in the name of a party, or rather of a nation, I will continue unfriendly to the system of popular elections for all offices. My opinion has changed. If offices are to be distributed as party rewards, let them be at the disposal of the sovereign, the people, instead of being the perquisites of moneyed leaders and their followers, and their influential clubs. If the people are not fit to be so, let it be by those who have a right to exercise it. In short, the corruption of the times renders it necessary that all offices should be immediately filled by the people, or their choice so reduced as to cease to be the objects of political scramble."

This opinion of the rising fashion of primaries and caucuses shows that our author trusted the robust blood of a thriving politician as much as he did the persistence of a successful lawyer. He was, however, a member of the Maryland Legislature for some time. His literary and philosophic turn made him rather more of a statesman, jurist and diplomatist, than anything else. He addressed to Mr. MONROE a public letter on the good policy of recognizing the independence of the South American Colonies, then in rebellion against Spain, and the pamphlet obtained a large notice at that time. He was subsequently, in 1818, sent as Secretary of a Commission which proceeded to South America in accordance with that policy. And further this autobiographer saveth not. He stops at the date of 1821, in the City of St. Louis, having, no doubt, given the reader the most genial and picturesque portion of his octogenarian life. The appendix of this work—which, we perceive, is in its second edition—contains some interesting matter. The book may be had of SHEPARD & Co., in this City.

—Gleverson and His Silent Partners. By RALPH KEELER. (Boston: LEE & SHEPARD.) Mr. RALPH KEELER is a favorite of the muses—the pedestrian muses, as HORACE would call them; for he traveled "barefoot"—as he himself tells us—through Europe on $101—a sum which seems to have had a sympathetic, perpetuate power of "going a great way," too. This book is as lively and remarkable a performance as the journey, possessing a good deal more graphic power and cleverness of style than interest as a story. The following, in which Miss Garr, the schoolmistress, gives an "object lesson" in school for the edification of one of the visitors, will be likely to disturb the reader's gravity.

Order restored, the lady held up before the little people a top, and demanded what they were doing to have new.

"A Object Lesson," was the unanimous answer.

"What is the plan of the system?"

"It is a system of drawin' out!" shouted (by this time shrill voices at once.

"There, there's right; a system of drawing out," she blushes, grin a glance toward Jimmy—"Jimmy answer simply as I call upon you. Who was the inventor of the system?

"Pest—pest—pest"—said a little fellow, with a strong lisp.

"Hey?" said the teacher.

"Pestalozzi?" shouted a bashful girl, with a curly head.

"The child has not been in school long," remarked the Miss, explanatorily. "Hey?"

"Mister Leery!" ejaculated a stubbed-looking male boy, from a suit of clothes in which well nigh everything was worn out—but the patches.

"That's right—Pestalozzi," said the teacher. "Now Jimmy, what is the object, as I have often told you, intelligence and virtue are not always with the rich?"

Shoving the toy again, she continued: "Now what do I hold this by?"

Several little hands went up, as if to show that their owners could tell, if they dared.

"By your hands, I hold it by?"

"By your hands and knees."

"Hey?"

"By the sez!" said the resolute voice of the spectacled little girl, who has opened the door to Victory.

"Hey?" shouted Miss Garr, triumphantly. "Now who can tell me the technical (pale to shrill tone) name of the peculiar form of the top?" Turning to Amos, she remarked: "You will certainly be surprised at the originality of some of their answers!"

"Conic, the technical name of the peculiar form of this top?"

Only one hand went up. To Amos, she said: "Now listen!—for something philosophical." Then to the owner of the hand, the boy with the paucity of patches:

"Well, what is it, Sammy?"

"Teacy, please may—may I go out?"

The impatient philosophy was too much for the composure of the two-sexed adults. The Object Lesson was discontinued.

—Too True: A Story of To-Day. (New-York: G. P. PUTNAM & SON.) We can scarcely call this a pleasant story—the title itself implies the melancholy nature of the events upon which it is based, and yet we know of few novels of the kind in which the gloomy effect of a tragic and somewhat sensational denouement is so artistically relieved by bright glimpses of happy home life, and touches of genuine and unforced humor, or in which, despite the painful termination, there is less attempt to gratify the morbid love for "harrowing" sensations which too many similar works of the day appeal to. The writer tells a melancholy tale in a way that implies either heartfelt sympathy with characters in real life, whom similar misfortunes have befallen, or a most delicately artistic power of commanding the interest of the reader on behalf of the creatures of his own imagination. The plot, though slight in comparison with those of the more ambitious works of fiction of the day, and mainly based upon the baseness and treachery of one individual, is ingeniously constructed, and embodies one or two decidedly novel situations. Its nature, however, is such that to give any outline of it would be unfair alike to the author and intending reader. We can mention, however, that the scene is laid partly in New-York and partly in a group of country residences on the banks of the Hudson, and that the couleur locale is admirably sustained throughout. No indication whatever is given on the title-page, or in the book itself, of the name of the author, but we may be allowed to express a hope that, at no distant period, it may be revealed in connection with another work of fiction, as full of originality and genuine merit as that now before us.

—Life Below: In Seven Poems. (New-York: HURD & HOUGHTON.) A species of explanatory introduction which accompanies this work, and expresses in plain prose the gist of the regular poetical introduction which certainly stands in need of some such process, tells us that "the plot is laid in a country village, during the time of our recent war. An aged author and reformer, who has allowed his amanuensis to enter the army, dictates the different poems, which relate his own personal history, to different characters in the village who volunteer to assist him. Although very comprehensive in its range of thought, the work is indirectly a picture and a defence of free institutions, social, political and religious."

This aged author, "not all unmoved by consciousness of power," proposed to relate

"Some tales of life
Which yet should be the tales of more than one,
For they should be of such life, not of same,
Our deeds rather are transient."

The tales relate to seven phases of life, so numbered:

"Like to the seven days that mark the week,
Or scales, men trace in music, stars and plants,
And dream in heaven, halls and worlds."

And entitled "Choosing," "Daring," "Doubting," "Learning," "Loving," "Serving," and "Watching," and each ushered in by a prelude representing one of the seven notes in the scale—Do, re, mi, &c. We have given a sufficient idea of the ambitious character and wide scope of the work, and cordially recommend all who deem "free institutions, social, political and religious," in need of a defence, comprised in three hundred pages of mystic-spasmodic poetry, and who find human life below long enough—or the literary "Life Below" short enough—to read it. All others we leave to the exercise of their own unbiased opinion.

—Blindpitt; a Story of Scottish Life. (New-York: G. P. PUTNAM & SON.) This story with an odd name, is written in that firm and matter-of-fact manner which is so much the Scottish style of story-telling, and which contrasts so remarkably with the gushing, glowing and sensational novels of so many of our American writers, and of the English also, in a certain degree, though not so much. The scenes are all presented in a very natural way, the delineations are very off-hand and happy, and the story has such a domestic interest that they who begin to read it will be anxious to follow the very lifelike fortunes of the heroine and her two lovers to the end.

—The Texas Almanac for 1869 and Emigrant's Guide to Texas, published by W. & D. RICHARDSON & Co., Galveston, presents in a convenient form a large amount of valuable statistics relating to that State. These present the profits arising from agriculture, stock-raising and wool-growing, the commercial and railroad interests of the State, the extent of its manufactures and its mineral resources. The publication, which has now reached its twelfth annual number, will be valuable not only to the citizens of the State and those contemplating removing thither, but also to all who have business relations with its people.

—United States Register, or Blue Book, for 1869. Mr. J. DEVERNEUIL has published, in neat form, the Blue Book, which contains a list of all the principal officers of the Government, their stations and their salaries. It also contains the census of 1860, and much valuable political and statistical information regarding the United States. For sale by the American News Company.

Musical Notes.

W. A. POND & Co. have just brought out a new work by Mr. WILLIAM MASON. The composition in question is entitled "The So-So Polka," and affords evidence of the skillful treatment of a rather insubstantial subject by a very competent musician. The same firm has issued besides "L'Attaque d'Amour," a characteristic morceau by A. LONGHURST, and two additions to their collection known as "The Spirit of Burlesque." The first of them is called "Hamlet (not the Prince of Denmark) Smiling in the Vale," and is neither more nor less than a succession of English words fitted to the music of a Danish national air. Gesting of the second, only that it is a "Polka-Mazurka" of which the chief merit is that it is not a Polka-Mazurka. The second new number of "The Spirit of Burlesque," is the song, "Up in a Balloon." Among the other productions bearing the imprint of POND & Co., are the latest issue from "Le Rêve-chole"—happily credited to OFFENBACH, though rechristened "A Poor Girl's Heart," a graceful melodic melody by CHARLES GOUNOD, called "Longing," and finally an awkward setting to music, by SIDNEY C. MASONY, of a familiar and sturdy poem, now yclept "Clear the Way; or the Song of the Pacific Railroad."

Among the latest publications of L. DAGANAUX & Co., we notice an agreeable fantasia transcription of "Le Réveilchole," by L. DAGANAUX, introducing the latter song, the song of "L'Esprit de la Jeune Indienne," and the incognita complete of the Viceroy, all generally arranged for the piano and bound together by phrases of a few bars, each selected from other portions of the opera. Besides the firm have issued the latter song from the same work, the Grisette arietta, and the verses with the refrain, "Que les hommes sont bêtes." From "L'Old Crave," DAGANAUX & Co. have selected for publication a potpourri, by G. C. ARRY, embracing as principal motives the duet in the first act for tenor and soprano, and the vivacious rondo à la valse, commencing "Mesmieris, chasperiorie;" and, finally, a waltz on the latter air, and a galop of a pleasing and spirited character.

THE TARIFF—MR. WELLS ON SALT

Salt Not a Monopoly—Price Not Advanced in Proportion—Mr. Wells' Mistake—Industry is the Source of Wealth and Should be Protected.

THE RESORMER, Friday, Jan. 15, 1869.

The New-York Evening Post quotes a paragraph from Mr. WELLS' report in the following style:

"Salt is one of the necessaries of life. It is manufactured in the United States chiefly by two great corporations, the Syracuse Salt Company and the Saginaw Salt Company. These monopolists have persuaded Congress to let them oppress the people for a period of nearly seven years, since 1862. They now want to turn the screws a little—or rather a good deal—tighter. Mr. WELLS remarks, in his official report:

'When we consider how, through the indispensable use of this article, we have driven down the twenty-three cents per bushel in 1861 to forty-eight cents in 1868 has come home to the whole people.'

I am sorry to see Mr. WELLS meddling with the tariff, especially when he seems to know very little about it. The whole of the above statement is a gross misrepresentation, and common justice requires it should be corrected. It has been noticed in the Tribune, but not fully.

1. There is no monopoly held by Syracuse and Saginaw, nor any approach to one. Pomeroy, (Ohio,) is one of the largest salt manufacturing places in the United States, with a power of indefinite expansion. There are now made at Pomeroy from two to three millions of bushels of salt a year, and new works are constantly erected. On the Kanhawa were formerly made immense quantities; and also on the Conemaugh, in Pennsylvania; but the water at Pomeroy is very strong, and has mainly superseded the other places.

2. There is no oppression of the people by the Salt duty any more than there is by the Excise law of New-York. It is simple humbug to call it so. Mr. WELLS says the price was 23 cents in 1861, and 48 cents in 1868. Not so at all. In December, 1868, salt had reached at Cincinnati 48 cents, much higher, I think, than in the previous years; but it was in currency. The price, as compared with 1861, was only 35 cents. The rise in salt was, in fact, less than in the common products of the country, upon which there was no duty. Mr. WELLS has been very unfortunate in the example he has taken to show the evil of the tariff. He could have succeeded much better with some other things. But this is not all. He has not stated the facts about salt in any way correctly. The following are the prices of salt, at Cincinnati, in August of 1863, 1863, and 1864, in gold:

In 1862	35 cents per bushel.
In 1863	32 cents per bushel.
In 1864	30 cents per bushel.

Now you perceive at once that there has been no considerable rise in salt in consequence of the tariff, and certainly none greater than in the ordinary products of the country. The fact is that the price of salt in the interior of the country has not depended on the tariff at all. Not a pound of butter or pork has been dearer on account of the tariff. How much salt does Mr. WELLS suppose there is in a pound of butter or a pound of pork? If he will analyze it he will find that he and the Evening Post have made themselves very ridiculous.

The price of a bushel of salt, according to Mr. WELLS, is forty-eight cents. There are fifty pounds in a bushel, and a pound of salt is less than a cent. Now does Mr. WELLS suppose there is a quarter of a pound or an ounce of salt in a pound of pork or butter? There is not a mill's worth of salt in a pound of butter! And now I hope Mr. WELLS and the Evening Post will sleep in peace with the knowledge that the people are not oppressed with the salt duty. If the Free Traders would take the trouble sometimes to consult facts instead of imagination, they would cease to be the most unreasoning and ridiculous people in the country.

3. I have no interest whatever in manufactures or commerce, nor any desire to exalt either of them. But I know two things: the first is that this country must have as large a revenue as it can get from the tariff on importations; and I know that the raising of the tariff has produced more revenue. This, in my mind, is conclusive. If I could get more revenue by doubling the tariff, I would double it. One of the strongest arguments and continually-reiterated objections of the Free Traders is already exploded beyond redemption. You will find, by turning back to the free-trade organs a few years since, that they insisted that raising the tariff would diminish the imports, and thus diminish the revenue. What is the fact? We have raised the tariff more than fifty per cent., and we have increased the imports and doubled the revenue! Thus has gone by the board one of those fallacies which seemed plausible enough, but which only imposed upon ignorant men. When a distinguished officer of the Government undertakes to show that the people are oppressed by a duty on salt, which don't amount to ten cents on a hundred pounds of salt pork, I think it is time to look into the figures a little and see if the Government is really to go on moonshine. I shall take the liberty of looking into Mr. WELLS' Report. Giving a mere glance to it, I saw some things which I very much liked; and I hope that there are not other blunders, like this salt business.

It is by industry only, in every department of life, that we can pay debts or increase wealth. We cannot get out of debt by swapping jackets. I lay down this proposition as incontrovertible—that whatever stimulates industry is beneficial to the country. I care nothing about prices because they are paid and received in our own country. If you can raise more corn, or make more yards of cloth, or more bushels of salt, you are benefited so much more. If you can make the idle men work; if you can make your fashionable people do something useful in life; if you can put your gamblers and drinkers to labor in State Prisons, and if you can put the whole race of Wall-street speculators to shoemaking or any decent trade, you will thus benefit the whole country. Industry is the great source of age, wealth and civilization, and if the people arising from industry, stock-raising and wool-growing, the commercial and railroad interests of the State, the extent of its manufactures and its mineral resources. The publication, which has now reached its twelfth annual number, will be valuable not only to the citizens of the State and those contemplating removing thither, but also to all who have business relations with its people.

—United States Register, or Blue Book, for 1869. Mr. J. DEVERNEUIL has published, in neat form, the Blue Book, which contains a list of all the principal officers of the Government, their stations and their salaries. It also contains the census of 1860, and much valuable political and statistical information regarding the United States. For sale by the American News Company.

Musical Notes.

W. A. POND & Co. have just brought out a new work by Mr. WILLIAM MASON. The composition in question is entitled "The So-So Polka," and affords evidence of the skillful treatment of a rather insubstantial subject by a very competent musician. The same firm has issued besides "L'Attaque d'Amour," a characteristic morceau by A. LONGHURST, and two additions to their collection known as "The Spirit of Burlesque." The first of them is called "Hamlet (not the Prince of Denmark) Smiling in the Vale," and is neither more nor less than a succession of English words fitted to the music of a Danish national air. Gesting of the second only that it is a "Polka-Mazurka" of which the chief merit is that it is not a Polka-Mazurka. The second new number of "The Spirit of Burlesque," is the song, "Up in a Balloon." Among the other productions bearing the imprint of POND & Co., are the latest issue from "Le Rêve-chole"—happily credited to OFFENBACH, though rechristened "A Poor Girl's Heart," a graceful melodic melody by CHARLES GOUNOD, called "Longing," and finally an awkward setting to music, by SIDNEY C. MASONY, of a familiar and sturdy poem, now yclept "Clear the Way; or the Song of the Pacific Railroad."

Among the latest publications of L. DAGANAUX & Co., we notice an agreeable fantasia transcription of "Le Réveilchole," by L. DAGANAUX, introducing the latter song, the song of "L'Esprit de la Jeune Indienne," and the incognita complete of the Viceroy, all generally arranged for the piano and bound together by phrases of a few bars, each selected from other portions of the opera. Besides the firm have issued the latter song from the same work, the Grisette arietta, and the verses with the refrain, "Que les hommes sont bêtes." From "L'Old Crave," DAGANAUX & Co. have selected for publication a potpourri, by G. C. ARRY, embracing as principal motives the duet in the first act for tenor and soprano, and the vivacious rondo à la valse, commencing "Mesmieris, chasperiorie;" and, finally, a waltz on the latter air, and a galop of a pleasing and spirited character.

THE TARIFF—MR. WELLS ON SALT

Salt Not a Monopoly—Price Not Advanced in Proportion—Mr. Wells' Mistake—Industry is the Source of Wealth and Should be Protected.

THE RESORMER, Friday, Jan. 15, 1869.

The New-York Evening Post quotes a paragraph from Mr. WELLS' report in the following style:

"Salt is one of the necessaries of life. It is manufactured in the United States chiefly by two great corporations, the Syracuse Salt Company and the Saginaw Salt Company. These monopolists have persuaded Congress to let them oppress the people for a period of nearly seven years, since 1862. They now want to turn the screws a little—or rather a good deal—tighter. Mr. WELLS remarks, in his official report:

'When we consider how, through the indispensable use of this article, we have driven down the twenty-three cents per bushel in 1861 to forty-eight cents in 1868 has come home to the whole people.'

I am sorry to see Mr. WELLS meddling with the tariff, especially when he seems to know very little about it. The whole of the above statement is a gross misrepresentation, and common justice requires it should be corrected. It has been noticed in the Tribune, but not fully.

1. There is no monopoly held by Syracuse and Saginaw, nor any approach to one. Pomeroy, (Ohio,) is one of the largest salt manufacturing places in the United States, with a power of indefinite expansion. There are now made at Pomeroy from two to three millions of bushels of salt a year, and new works are constantly erected. On the Kanhawa were formerly made immense quantities; and also on the Conemaugh, in Pennsylvania; but the water at Pomeroy is very strong, and has mainly superseded the other places.

2. There is no oppression of the people by the Salt duty any more than there is by the Excise law of New-York. It is simple humbug to call it so. Mr. WELLS says the price was 23 cents in 1861, and 48 cents in 1868. Not so at all. In December, 1868, salt had reached at Cincinnati 48 cents, much higher, I think, than in the previous years; but it was in currency. The price, as compared with 1861, was only 35 cents. The rise in salt was, in fact, less than in the common products of the country, upon which there was no duty. Mr. WELLS has been very unfortunate in the example he has taken to show the evil of the tariff. He could have succeeded much better with some other things. But this is not all. He has not stated the facts about salt in any way correctly. The following are the prices of salt, at Cincinnati, in August of 1863, 1863, and 1864, in gold:

In 1862	35 cents per bushel.
In 1863	32 cents per bushel.
In 1864	30 cents per bushel.

Now you perceive at once that there has been no considerable rise in salt in consequence of the tariff, and certainly none greater than in the ordinary products of the country. The fact is that the price of salt in the interior of the country has not depended on the tariff at all. Not a pound of butter or pork has been dearer on account of the tariff. How much salt does Mr. WELLS suppose there is in a pound of butter or a pound of pork? If he will analyze it he will find that he and the Evening Post have made themselves very ridiculous.

The price of a bushel of salt, according to Mr. WELLS, is forty-eight cents. There are fifty pounds in a bushel, and a pound of salt is less than a cent. Now does Mr. WELLS suppose there is a quarter of a pound or an ounce of salt in a pound of pork or butter? There is not a mill's worth of salt in a pound of butter! And now I hope Mr. WELLS and the Evening Post will sleep in peace with the knowledge that the people are not oppressed with the salt duty. If the Free Traders would take the trouble sometimes to consult facts instead of imagination, they would cease to be the most unreasoning and ridiculous people in the country.

3. I have no interest whatever in manufactures or commerce, nor any desire to exalt either of them. But I know two things: the first is that this country must have as large a revenue as it can get from the tariff on importations; and I know that the raising of the tariff has produced more revenue. This, in my mind, is conclusive. If I could get more revenue by doubling the tariff, I would double it. One of the strongest arguments and continually-reiterated objections of the Free Traders is already exploded beyond redemption. You will find, by turning back to the free-trade organs a few years since, that they insisted that raising the tariff would diminish the imports, and thus diminish the revenue. What is the fact? We have raised the tariff more than fifty per cent., and we have increased the imports and doubled the revenue! Thus has gone by the board one of those fallacies which seemed plausible enough, but which only imposed upon ignorant men. When a distinguished officer of the Government undertakes to show that the people are oppressed by a duty on salt, which don't amount to ten cents on a hundred pounds of salt pork, I think it is time to look into the figures a little and see if the Government is really to go on moonshine. I shall take the liberty of looking into Mr. WELLS' Report. Giving a mere glance to it, I saw some things which I very much liked; and I hope that there are not other blunders, like this salt business.

It is by industry only, in every department of life, that we can pay debts or increase wealth. We cannot get out of debt by swapping jackets. I lay down this proposition as incontrovertible—that whatever stimulates industry is beneficial to the country. I care nothing about prices because they are paid and received in our own country. If you can raise more corn, or make more yards of cloth, or more bushels of salt, you are benefited so much more. If you can make the idle men work; if you can make your fashionable people do something useful in life; if you can put your gamblers and drinkers to labor in State Prisons, and if you can put the whole race of Wall-street speculators to shoemaking or any decent trade, you will thus benefit the whole country. Industry is the great source of age, wealth and civilization, and if the people arising from industry,

[illegible]

TRAGEDY IN NEW-ORLEANS.

A Strange Story of Love and Crime—History of the Affair as Given by the Wife of the Murderer.

From the New-Orleans Times, Jan. 17.

The most interesting tragedy that has been enacted in the city for many years, and one which awakens the discussion of those problems upon which society reels, has occurred during the past week, and still agitates the mind of the public. It is a question which involved, as contended, the honor of a family upon one side, and which, on the other, cost a young man of talent, fortune and position, his life. We have already given some account of the killing of Mr. SALVADOR FERNANDEZ, on Wednesday night, by LOUIS MARTIN. As the subject still remains the only one upon which the public appears much interested, and as the evidence of the various witnesses at the Coroner's inquest appeared obscure and to some extent conflicting, we endeavor to give a clear account of the facts:

About one year before the war, Mr. LOUIS MARTIN, a young man then about 28 years of age, and a jeweler by occupation, contracted marriage with the daughter of Mme. LEVIELLE, of France. Mme. CAMILLE MARTIN, his wife, who is now at the most not more than 22 years of age, was at that time said to be one of the handsomest girls in that district. The mother, according to all accounts, spared no expense or pains either in education of her daughter, the numberless whims of an only child in wantonness and appearance indicated a woman somewhat aspirious and passionate by nature, and whose ideas had been affected by the imaginative authors of her mother's tongues.

The homicide occurred on Wednesday night, at about 7:30 o'clock, up to which hour MARTIN had been in his store. At that time rumor has it that a negro, who had been on the watch near MARTIN'S residence, came and informed him that FERNANDEZ was in the neighborhood of his residence. MARTIN'S own statement is that the meeting was accidental. At the time the two men actually came together FERNANDEZ was seated on the steps exactly opposite MARTIN'S house. MARTIN approached, and drew a cheap knife, according to the statement of witnesses, about five or six inches long. The first thing heard of the difficulty was the exclamation made by FERNANDEZ, of "Assassin." Subsequently to this exclamation FERNANDEZ fired three shots. The information made by FERNANDEZ would seem to indicate that he had been already stabbed. This statement is, however, strongly contradicted by several of the witnesses. MARTIN was seen, at home, time during the struggle, either before inflicting any blows, as contended by his friends, or after one or two of the blows had been dealt, to retreat several steps and stoop, to avoiding the shots, almost to the gutter. Subsequently he sprung upon the body of FERNANDEZ, then prostrate, according to the statement of LOCHER. According to BEARD'S statement, FERNANDEZ seemed afterward to have retreated toward Canal-street, muttering cries of murder, and when he came to the corner of Damaine and St. Claude streets, fell, for the last time, in the arms of Mr. BOUDREAU. A fact to be kept in mind, in understanding the difficulty, is that the room of FERNANDEZ was very close to, or, according to some accounts, adjoining the residence of MARTIN. His presence in the neighborhood did not, therefore, ordinarily appear singular, and the contiguity of the two residences accounted for the frequency of the interviews.

Below is given the statement of Mme. MARTIN, as to what had preceded the tragedy:

STATEMENT OF MME. CAMILLE MARTIN.

"From the time I was eight years of age I know SALVADOR FERNANDEZ, and from that time we were raised up as children together. We were strongly attached at the commencement of the war, although I was then very young, and neither of us then dreamed of loving anyone else. After the city was captured by the Federal army, SALVADOR was on blockade and went to Havana. He subsequently succeeded in entering the Confederacy, and remained in service until peace as Lieutenant. It was while he was thus absent that I heard that he had been killed in some battle, and, after giving way to the grief naturally suggested by his death, I thought myself absolved from his attachment, and had previously existed between us. Subsequently I accepted the hand of Mr. LOUIS MARTIN. The first time I saw SALVADOR was after the war, and at the time I was about embarking for Matamoras. My husband had already become established in business there, and I was going thither to rejoin him. Just as I was crossing the levee SALVADOR met me. It was the first time I had seen him for years; and he seemed by his attitude and manner that he loved me as much as ever. I told him, when he asked me what I was about to do, that I was then on my way to Matamoras. He reproached me with having married during his absence, and begged me not to go. I explained to him that I thought that he was dead. He said that in that case I ought not to have married him, or that at least I ought not to have married anyone else. Finding that I was about going to Mexico, he begged me not to call in the direction—the vessel upon which my passage was already engaged—but to accept a cabin and berth upon a schooner belonging to himself or his family. He stated that in case I should be willing to remain in this way, that everything should be placed at my disposal, free of charge. I explained that I was under the protection of a relative, and that his proposal was simply impossible. I then bade him adieu—the vessel set sail, and I reached Matamoras in safety. After arriving there, I received a letter from SALVADOR, telling me that he would soon rejoin me. I promptly wrote back word that he must do nothing of the sort; that the country was a miserable one, that I myself was weary with it, and that I would shortly return to the city. It was not a great while after that I did return. When I came home I found I was in conversation with a Mr. ——, and without paying any attention to her, he passed between us, turning his back upon her. I remonstrated and pointed out his apparent rudeness to my friend. He gave as his excuse that he was so agitated and happy at seeing me that he had forgotten every one else. "Some time after, one Mardi Gras night, we met at the ball given at the Varieties Theatre.

[As to what occurred at this ball it appears from the statements of third parties that an adopted daughter of Mme. LEVIELLE had come with CAMILLE to the ball, and that in one of the loges occupied by MARTIN and his wife SALVADOR FERNANDEZ had entered and paid marked attention to Mme. MARTIN. According to the statement of Mme. CAMILLE MARTIN, FERNANDEZ became some of a warm dispute had been struck by MARTIN. He (as she says) then the adopted daughter returned home she reported to Mme. LEVIELLE that she would never go to another ball with her daughter CAMILLE again—that she was expressive, too high-handed, and had acted all the evening, at sight of FERNANDEZ, as if out of her senses.]

The statement of Mme. MARTIN is resumed:

"We subsequently met at the National Theatre, and some different words occurred between MARTIN and FERNANDEZ. SALVADOR and I had gone to the supper-room together and drank a bottle of wine. MARTIN seemed incensed at this and demanded an explanation. SALVADOR then stated that he had known me from a child; that he had always acted toward me as a sister, and that he would eat, sleep and drink with me when he pleased. Something was then said about the parties descending to the parquette to settle the difficulty then and there. The matter, as most as recollected, ended in the interposition of friends.

"We never became really lovers until St. Joseph's night following. At that time I begged SALVADOR that we need to see our meetings, as we were really wrong, and acting like a madman, and would inevitably ruin us both. He refused. He said that he would live as long as he had life, and both upon that occasion and afterward declared that neither I nor himself should ever survive a separation. Indeed, more than one time he proposed that we should both take poison together, and that he should take my husband, and I my lover. He had many desperate ideas in this respect, which I never could understand, and which made me wonder where he could have obtained them.

"After the ball last mentioned, he was never willing that I should go out unless he was someone. He was constantly telling me that he was watching me, meeting me everywhere, and was travelling that I attends go wherever I was not attended, or certain of meeting him. When I went to the theatre or any place of entertainment he always followed, and when I went out at night to visit at my private house he followed me. Upon such occasions I started from home by a child as an escort, and SALVADOR would always be outside to relate my principal theatre with him was the direct jealousy. He wished me to leave my husband, reside with some of my relations and friends, and obtain a divorce.

About two months ago SALVADOR hearing that there was to be a wedding to which I was invited, and to which he was not, protested strongly against my attending. Among other arguments he used to induce me to remain away, he threatened on the spot visited or some enormous upon my dress just as I was dressing to go. I told him I would go and suffer what he pleased. I did go, and he did nothing politic. Subsequently, however, when the time came, it did not go, and he I remained in my house while of my family that would have gone with me.

I saw SALVADOR about every day; he was constantly coming and repeating the first time I saw him after the time I was invited him to go away. He did so, but only went across the street to sit down upon the steps of a colored man's door. Why he did so I could not understand. While he was sitting there my husband, who was attending to collect some money from a house that had been owing him, passed along and recognized SALVADOR. I did not see the difficulty, recommended SALVADOR. I did not see the difficulty, recommended SALVADOR and asked him if his name was FRANKENDE. He had then replied "NO! there's my name," and had drawn and discharged a revolver at the same moment. From what had been told me, and what I saw of SALVADOR'S character, I believe that he had fired first.

At the time that the disturbance actually took place, I had commenced undressing for the first, and was taking off my shoes and stockings when my attention was called to the difficulty. I never for a moment suspected that the parties were armed. I thought it was simply the discharge of a fire-cracker that I heard and ran to the door. I saw my husband and SALVADOR FERNANDEZ and MARTIN and MARTIN and FERNANDEZ and SALVADOR and MARTIN and FERNANDEZ and SALVADOR and MARTIN and FERNANDEZ and SALVADOR

PROTESTANTISM.

Rev. Dr. Ewer's Sermon Last Evening in Answer to Rev. Dr. Hall.

Rev. Dr. F. C. Ewer, last evening, at his church, corner of Fifth-avenue and Thirty-fifth-street, delivered a sermon in response to that of Rev. Dr. HALL in which the latter argued that Protestantism is not a failure. Dr. Ewer said: When a large structure, whose foundations have been badly and unwisely settled, receives a shock from outside, it is not at all strange that, as it sways and creaks, the affrighted population within should suddenly throw their heads out of its many windows, and in as many uncouth phrases roundly chide the unlucky wight that has had the temerity to disturb their slumbers. Rather such demonstrations it is never well to open the month to apply. The extended and its better counsel are collected. Professionally, has been somewhat of the kind that has followed the successive assaults of our arguments and positions, the attempts to floodwind the matter, the fact that people have made haste to reply who have not read what they purpose to be answering, (Sensation,) sufficient that second Protestantism has been attacked—no matter how—for them to fly at the assailant.) the fact that of best people have replied after reading which sentiment guilty of the attack, or perhaps simply persuaded for the course, the superstitious scorn of learned disciples of Rationalism divinity, the impossibility, the last misdirection and incompetent ridicule, have caused to fall by no other answer than silence. They were sensitive, and not unreasonable, that something is rotten in the Denmark of Protestantism. Wisdom would have suggested entire quiet among the Protestants. This would at least have given the appearance of strength, and the world would not have so easily discovered the weakness of their system. But the case, it seems, was too desperate for that. During their continued overthrowing said or written by them was utterly side of the mark. But now, at last, the confusion being remedied, even Rationalists, at the head of one of its ancient and learned divines, Dr. Oswald Dykes, has pronounced a verdict on the real results of the case. This reply is printed in the Independent. The main charges, which, if true, are fatal, were twofold. The first was as follows, viz.: Once Protestantism so held the masses that they were fought and died for it, making central Europe continuous battle-field for a hundred years; but in three hundred years it has positively lost the hold it once had on the masses. The fact is, while Rome still believed in Romanism, nominal Protestants no longer believe in Protestantism. To such an extent is this the case, that with all their cries against Ritualism, they calling it Popery, they nevertheless pay for building new churches; they throng Rome's churches, and spend their money freely for all the schools and nunneries with their children; while "God bless you" they send her Sisters on her proselyting work all over our network of railroads with free tickets. Whether all this, and more, or whether any of it is right or wrong, it was not thus once. Then Protestants more believed in Protestantism, and really disbelieved in Rome. And this is only an additional proof of the decay of Protestantism. But late first charge, the learned Doctor wisely abstains from touching. It is against the second charge that he thinks he can make out a case. That second charge is this, namely, that the fundamental principle of Protestantism leads logically to Unitarianism and Rationalism. Then we logically drown to be the case, by giving in various ways, the logical steps from the Protestant premises down to the Rationalistic conclusion, showing how the two are linked together. We have shown how, if you start away with the Protestant principle, "The Bible and the Bible only for Christians," you must, which he continues, "Every man a Bible unto himself;" if you start away with the Protestant idea of election, you reach the practical fact at last of immediation—of the rejection of mediation—of the rearing of Rationalism on the ruins of Christianity; if you start away with the Protestant idea of election, I should call it—of mediation, their supposed mediation—of the real immediation; if you start away with the Protestant denial of a Priesthood in the Church, it logically ends in the denial of the Priesthood of Christ; if you start away with that denial of the Eucharistic sacrifice, it ends in a denial of the sacrifice of Calvary. But I will not recapitulate the various sets of steps in which Protestantism has been shown to lead logically to a denial of Christianity, its Protestantism sliding down into the more logical Congregationalism, the latter sliding down into the still more logical Unitarianism, and the latter into the yet more logical infidelity. "Try it any way you will, and this is the end." Try it another way than any I have before given, and the Deity of Christ, the fountain of authority and power, the given authority to the Apostles. The Apostles established a Ministry for the Church in three orders—Bishops, Priests and Deacons. The Bishops only receive authority from the Apostles, and, therefore, from Christ, the fountain of authority to establish and to perpetuate it. Priests have certain powers indeed, but they do not receive the authority to ordain. The ministry then perpetuates itself continuously through the Bishops for 1,600 years. But at last a priest or presbyter takes it upon himself to ordain presbyters to the ministry, and those ordained by him to ordain others. He and he received no such power from the human head. "But," he says, I'll take it upon myself to ordain presbyters anyhow, and so instead of the old apostolic government of Bishops receiving their authority from Christ, we will have a presbyterian government of the Church. Now what is the inevitable logical result? If the presbyters have a right to assume this power, the people have just as much right to assume a similar power, and the people in the Church begin at last to say, "By what right do these presbyters and ruling elders govern us, that we do not have equally with them?" The fact is, neither of them have any right to ordain, for no such power descended to either of them from the fountain head. But if the presbyters have any right in assuming to ordain, the people of the congregation have at least an equal right, and it is much more satisfactory to them to have a voice in the matter. Indeed at God, or one directly authorized by Him, is not to rule them, surely it is right and fair that they should rule themselves, and not be ruled by presbyters, who are mere man like themselves, and so the people begin to say, "We might over the usurpers, and demand that they should no longer rule the Church. They are perfectly logical in their false conclusion, if you grant the Presbyterian false premises; thus you have Presbyterianism developing logically into Congregationalism. But it is not necessary that I go on and show further how "low ministry" leads logically to the grain "low measurements," and how "low sacraments" are followed by "low Christs," and "low Christs" by "low Bible," till at last you enter Unitarianism, and go to seed in Pantheism. I merely wish to recall to your minds the fact that I have not simply showed that ministry divorced with Protestantism, but have in various ways proved that Rationalism is the latter sound inevitably issue in the former, and thus have substantiated the matter by showing that the truth we should thus anticipate has actually happened wherever Protestantism has existed for one or two centuries. Now if I should ask a Sophomore in College how he would undertake to refute this argument, he would reply, why, of course, by showing that the logical steps given are not logical. Moreover, in taking every one of the logical sliding scales you give down into Infidelity and showing that it is sinuous—that the premises do not lead where you say they do. And then winding up and demonstrating you by stumbling for the patent feet of the sceptic, you would have proved that Protestantism is some other hypothesis. And the Sophomore would be entirely correct. But how does Rev. Dr. HALL meet the thesis? Why, marvelously enough, by attempting, (mind I don't say he does prove it,) but by attempting to prove that our Church leads also to Unitarianism. But suppose it does, how does that help his case? It is as if he should say to Dr. Wm. Hy. B., you are very, very sick," and it should turn and charge upon A the melancholy fact that A looks a little feeble also, would that help the case of Bat all, or prove that he was not sick? Surely not. It is not strange that the other writers who have confusedly dashed into this arena leave in rest, not having any to taking pains to know who their antagonist was, should have made such worry as they have, but that a divine coming to the wise and dignified ability set forth by the Church; who has to hear but not of her. And when these men fall into error, they do so because of their Protestantism, because they start away on the Protestant principle of private judgment in all things and not because of the Church's Catholicity and the authority over the private judgment which she claims in matters of faith, but which they fail to acknowledge. But that dark Catholicity and that wise free Protestantism are not Christianity, yet it is not very unusual to see it so. Christianity is not Protestantism, and private judgment is not God, and yet we have seen it so. Rationalism is not Christianity, and yet we have seen it so. Nothing is so easy as to confound these things together; and when the people in the church, the people in the church, the people in the church,

The New-York Times.

PUBLISHED DAILY, TRI-WEEKLY AND WEEKLY.

NEW-YORK, MONDAY, JAN. 25, 1869.

Amusements this Evening.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.
LA PERICHOLE. Opera-bouffe in three acts, Mlle. Rose Hill, Pepin, M. Adler, M. Ladue, M. Bogard, M. Gaston, M. Hamilton and others.

WALLACK'S THEATRE.
Broadway, near Broome.
MONEY. Characters by Messrs. Lester Wallack, Gilbert, Brougham, Blackmore, Moore, Stuart, Mrs. Oliver Hazlitt, Miss Rosalyn, Mrs. Bailey, Jones and others.

BROUGHAM'S THEATRE.
BETWEEN LATE TWO RIVERS, and THE DRAMATIC REVIVAL FOR MR. BROUGHAM. Characters by Messrs. Brougham, Backhouse, Wallack, Hall, Mrs. Hoey, Miss Rose Verner, Mrs. W. Wood, Mrs. Chanfrau, Miss Wallack and others.

GILMORE'S GARDEN.
Broadway, opposite the Metropolitan.
AFTER DARK; OR, LONDON BY NIGHT. Characters by Messrs. Fox, Maeder, Vaio, Mrs. Hoey and others.

OLYMPIC THEATRE.
Broadway, between Houston and Bleecker sts.
MARIE DUBOIS. Characters by Mr. Geo. C. Boniface, Mr. F. Lane, Mr. J. K. Fox, Miss Ida Vernon, Miss A. Harrison, Mr. F. Bonner and others.

FRENCH THEATRE.
14 West 14th-st.
LA DAME DE FER. Characters by Mons. Rose-Rey, Mlle. Pauline, Mesdm. Cassen, Gobin, Sauvage, Gonz, Fix, and others.

NEW-YORK THEATRE.
Broadway, near Spring-st.
FIELD OF THE CLOTH OF GOLD. Leading characters by the Misses Wolcott.

WOOD'S MUSEUM AND THEATRE.
Broadway, near Broome-st.
Afternoon—DRAMA AND FARCE. Evening—REPEATING UNION. GRAND EXHIBITION OF CURIOSITIES. Open day and evening.

BROADWAY THEATRE.
Broadway, near Broome-st.
THE VIOLINIST AND THE PEOPLE'S LAWYER. Leading characters by Mr. John E. Owens.

BOWERY THEATRE.
Bowery, near Canal-st.
THE SCHOOL OF NOTRE DAME, &c. By a powerful cast.

THE GARDEN.
Bowery, near Canal-st.
GRAND COMBINATION OF MUSIC, PLAYS, ACROBATIC FEATS, &c.

NEW-YORK CIRCUS.
12th-st., opposite Union Square.
EQUESTRIAN AND GYMNASTIC PERFORMANCES AND PANTOMIMES.

SERANDY MINSTREL HALL.
Broadway, near Bleecker-st.
THE RIVALS. Burlesque, VOCALISTS, HUMORISTS, &c.

SAN FRANCISCO MINSTRELS.
Mechanics' Hall, 472 Broadway.
BOOB SQUIRE DIABOLO, NEGRO COMICALITIES, &c.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.
14th-st., near Irving-place.
ANNUAL BALL OF THE LATE VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT. For the benefit of the Widows and Orphans' Fund.

LYRIC HALL.
No. 18 East 14th-st., between 4th and 5th-avs.
SOUBRE DANSANTE.

NATIONAL ACADEMY OF DESIGN.
Corner 23d-st. and 4th-av.
SECOND WINTER EXHIBITION OF PICTURES.

Terms of the New-York Times.
MAIL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

The DAILY TIMES, per annum $12
The DAILY TIMES, exclusive of Sunday Edition .. $10
The semi-WEEKLY TIMES, one year $3
The semi-WEEKLY TIMES, two copies, one year $5
The WEEKLY TIMES, one year $2
Five copies $8
Ten copies $15

These prices are invariable. We have no traveling agents. Remit in drafts on New-York or Post Office Money Orders if possible, and where neither of these can be procured, send the money in a registered letter. All Postmasters are obliged to register letters when requested to do so, and the system is an absolute protection against loss by mail. Address

E. J. RAYMOND & CO.,
TIMES Office, New-York.

Notice.

We cannot notice anonymous communications. In all cases we require the writer's name and address, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

We cannot return rejected communications, nor preserve manuscripts, unless specially requested so to do.

To Advertisers.

Advertisers in the TIMES are requested to bring in their advertisements as early in the day as possible, inasmuch after 8½ o'clock, it will be impossible to classify them under their proper heads.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The Viceroy of Egypt has offered to furnish Turkey an army of 30,000 men in the event of war with Greece. Admiral HOBART PASHA has abandoned the blockade of the Greek steamer Enosis on the assumption of the Governor of Syra that permission will not be given for the departure of that vessel. It is reported in Paris that Greece has rejected the propositions of the Peace Conference.

Both Houses of the Italian Parliament have recently been discussing the obnoxious mill-tax collections ordered by the Government, and which gave rise to popular outbreaks in various districts. During the debate the action of the Government was severely denounced.

The Emperor of France yesterday received the Chinese Embassy officially, and sentiments of mutual good will were exchanged. He especially complimented Mr. BURLINGAME, an American, on his position as chief of the Embassy.

The Provisional Government of Spain declines to receive any overtures looking to the cession of Cuba.

GENERAL.

Highwaymen have thus far had a singularly easy time in robbing people on the roads about Cincinnati. They have within a short time sacked a large number of houses in the suburbs, and robbed carriages on the roads in the vicinity of the city. The greater number of robberies have occurred on the Avondale road, within the city limits. Six masked men have at one time had three carriages stopped, while their companies were being relieved of money, watches and shirt buttons. The Police have made no arrests for these offenses, and none of the victims have ever attempted resistance when requested to "stand and deliver."

A riot occurred in Havana on Friday evening. During the performances at the theatre some of the audience commenced shouting, "Viva Cespedes," and finally commenced singing the revolutionary hymn. The Police and Spanish volunteers finally fired upon the multitude, and a riot ensued, during which several persons on both sides were killed. Still more riots are anticipated.

E. W. WIRE, a photographer of Hannibal, Mo., was arrested recently for manufacturing counterfeit postal currency. A considerable quantity of currency, presses, ink, &c., was found in his establishment.

The attempt to lynch MILLER, the murderer, in Prairie du Chien, Ill., Thursday, failed. A mob of over 600 threatened the Sheriff, who was assisted by special constables. Hundreds of country people assembled to witness the expected hanging. At midnight the Sheriff had the prisoner conveyed in a close carriage to a point outside the town, where he was put aboard a freight train for Milwaukee.

ANNIE BLAKE, a negro woman, while drinking in a saloon in Memphis, Tenn., Friday afternoon, was shot through the head and instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a pistol lying on a shelf, which was cocked. It is supposed that the jar caused by replacing bottles caused it to be discharged.

A jury in New-Orleans, last week, rendered a verdict of $15,000 against the Carrollton Railroad Company in favor of a lad eight years old who was run over by one of their trains and so severely injured that both his legs had to be amputated.

The case of WITHERS vs. the estate of BLANC, tried in New-Orleans, came to an unsatisfactory conclusion on Wednesday. The question involved was whether the defendants were liable for notes given before the war for the purchase of slaves. The jury stood eleven for the plaintiff to one against.

It is reported that the trustee of the estate of the late STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS has just commenced suit in Chicago against THOMAS B. DUNCAN and others for the recovery of some real estate of which the heirs were dispossessed shortly after the death of Mr. DOUGLAS. The attempt of DUNCAN to transfer the property is said to be the cause of the commencement of proceedings against him.

A private letter has been received by a citizen of Georgetown, from JOHN H. SURRATT, at Rio Janeiro, Brazil, where he arrived after a passage of forty-three days from Baltimore. He states that he made the trip for the benefit of his health, and expects to return in a few weeks.

Mr. JAMES M. WALKER, late Mayor of Danville, Va., who was arrested, in this city some time since, charged with burning out fire to his distillery both [illegible], was released on bail, and has not been heard from.

The case of the Chicago Policemen, who are charged with an assault upon the late Judge TRUMBULL, resulting in his death, is to be brought before the Grand Jury of the Recorder's Court. Great indignation is expressed against them.

The Olympic Theatre at Detroit was destroyed by fire on Saturday night. Loss, $30,000.

Dr. CHARLES W. BARRETT and Mrs. JACOB BROWN were arraigned in a Chicago Police Court, on Thursday, charged with the murder, by poison, of Mrs. BROWN's husband. There being no positive evidence of guilt against them, they were committed to jail in $7,000 each.

A large congregation assembled last evening in St. George's Church, to take measures in aid of the Tract Society, which is now making efforts to furnish the necessary Christian publications for the missionary work in Spain and the South-western States. Eloquent addresses were made by Drs. TYNG, GURNEY and ADAMS, of this City, and also by Rev. Mr. PEROUNNE and Rev. Mr. BRACKENRIDGE, late of Spain and Brazil.

Mr. HORACE GREELEY spoke last evening at the Newsboys' Lodging-house, No. 49 Park-place, upon the importance of everyone having a trade, and, by that, insuring himself a certain means of subsistence.

Mr. VAN HORN, Superintendent of the Howard Mission, spoke yesterday at that institution, at the Sunday Morning Breakfast Society in Philadelphia, the Boys' Home in Baltimore, and the Newsboys' Lodging-house and Industrial Home in Washington, all of which he had lately visited.

The Morning Star Sunday School gained admission to the hall in Pike's Opera House yesterday morning, but found the room in such a disorderly condition as to be unfit for use, and accordingly adjourned to Hitchcock's Hall. Judge INGRAHAM has granted a temporary injunction against Mr. PIKE, and cited him to show issue why the injunction should not be made permanent.

We are indebted to A. BROWN, Jr., Purser of the steamship Cos. FOREST, for late Savannah papers.

Cotton fell off a fraction in price on Saturday on a light transaction. Breadstuffs were moderately inquired for; low grades of Flour and Spring Wheat were quoted firmer; Corn and Oats irregular. Provisions were held with more confidence, but were not remarkably active. Groceries quiet. Freights dull.

Gen. Grant's Cabinet.

Quite a sensation has been created in political circles by the announcement that Gen. GRANT has said that he does not intend to inform the gentlemen whom he has selected for his Cabinet of that fact, until he has himself been officially notified of his election to be President. The inference from this is that he has already made his selections; and, what is much more important, that he has done it without the advice of prominent politicians, or party leaders. This is regarded as wholly unprecedented and ominous of evil.

It must be conceded that it is unusual. The leaders of the dominant party have hitherto, as a general thing, made up Cabinets for incoming Presidents. They have done it in a variety of ways,—according to the character of the Presidents and the opportunities he has offered for their intervention. Sometimes they do it by advice, direct or indirect; sometimes by information, and sometimes by dictation, more or less disguised. They manage, as a general thing, in some way or other, to secure the selection of such men as they think ought to be selected, rather than such as the President himself might be supposed personally to prefer.

If the report in question be true, it looks as if Gen. GRANT intended to consult his own preferences first, and to select the officials, with whom he is to maintain the closest and most confidential relations, to please himself rather than anybody else. This is something new,—and somewhat experimental. How it will work remains to be seen. It will be regarded as presumption on his part. He cannot possibly know—it will be urged—all about the public men of the country, or about their fitness for special duties. His experience in civil affairs has been slight, and his acquaintance with public men limited. He needs to be informed on these points, by persons familiar with them; and all whom he does not consult, and who think they have a right to be consulted, will be apt to take offence at his neglect.

But it must be borne in mind that nobody can tell very accurately how much he has actually done in the way of consultation, on any of these subjects that are so soon to engage his attention and his action. He has been in Washington, the headquarters for political observation and information, during nearly all of the last four years,—and since his election he has made frequent visits to other centres of influence and knowledge. It must not be supposed that he has been idle or unobservant during all this time. He can probably find out as much that is valuable, about men and things, in a given time as any other man in the country: and we suspect that he will enter upon his official term with quite as accurate and satisfactory a knowledge of the public men, and the necessities of the country, as any of his would-be advisers could possibly give him.

This matter of volunteer advice has been a good deal overdone of late years. Committees have been constantly appointed,—to say nothing of the hundreds and thousands of persons who have appointed themselves,—in all parts of the country, to proceed to Washington and "advise" the President what ought to be done on a great variety of matters awaiting his action,—especially in regard to appointments to office. The great objection to this sort of "advice" is that it is seldom disinterested. The advisers generally seek to bring about such results as will promote their own objects or promote their own interests; and they are sure to represent to the President that these are precisely such as the good of the country requires and the people demand. They may not always be quite conscious of the selfishness that really colors their opinions and dictates the advice they give, but in nine cases out of ten it is their own interest they are consulting, rather than that of the President or the country.

We have no idea that Gen. GRANT intends to establish anything like a personal Administration,—that is, one in which his personal preferences, interests and wishes shall control his public action. Such an Administration is no more in harmony with his character and sentiments than with the nature of our Government or the spirit of our people. But we do believe, as we certainly hope, that he will act under a full sense of the personal responsibility, which his office devolves upon him,—that he will act upon his own personal judgments and convictions, rather than the dictation of party leaders or the requirement of volunteer organs of the public will. Presidents elected, as Gen. GRANT has been, by the unanimous voice of a party, may, in the exercise of their proper functions, pay due regard to the wishes of their party or the clamors of the Press and the public,—as the influences by which they were overruled.

The Presidency is an office of very great personal responsibilities. Within their proper sphere its duties cannot be transferred to others, nor can the responsibility for the manner in which they are performed be evaded, under any shelter of advice from other quarters. It is not a valid excuse for the appointment by the President of a dishonest or incompetent subordinate that he was recommended by all the Republicans of his neighborhood and his appointment demanded by all the Representatives of his district and State. The responsibility of the appointment rests on the President and on him alone; and while he may very properly and very wisely seek, from members of Congress and everybody else, information to guide his judgment, he cannot possibly avoid the responsibility of acting upon his own judgment by taking that of some one else in its stead. The appointment is his act, whether good or bad. In the case of the minor offices throughout the country the President is, of course compelled virtually to delegate the appointing power to some one else, from the evident impossibility of his performing it himself. But in regard to the more important offices, and especially to members of his Cabinet, upon whom the task of selecting their own subordinates, each in his own department, must mainly devolve, the case is very different. There the selection must be the President's own act; and the less he is trammeled or hampered in it, by dictation or advice, the better for him and for all the interests involved.

The Suffrage Question—Mr. Boutwell's Bill.

The tone and logic of Mr. BOUTWELL's argument are not calculated to strengthen the position he has assumed on the suffrage question. A legislator who undertakes to prove the untenableness of the view hitherto universally held in regard to the right of the States to determine, each for itself, the qualifications and conditions of suffrage, should be prepared to assign other reasons than those which spring from party necessities and party power. While the war lasted, and the unity of the Republic was in jeopardy, members had some excuse for affirming their readiness to assume the responsibility of a certain policy, and to interpret the Constitution in harmony therewith. National necessities and patriotic instincts were relied upon in the midst of conflict to indicate and justify a rendering of the organic law favorable to the pretensions of the General Government. These exigencies, however, we have happily outlived. And though as between Federal and State authority in matters vital to the integrity of the Union, the question has been decided in favor of the former, we are not to conclude, after the manner of Mr. BOUTWELL, that anything which Congress may choose to do in respect of suffrage is covered by the plea of partisan necessity. Universal enfranchisement may have been essential to the success of reconstruction, and it may be desirable in all the States as a means of perfecting the exercise of citizenship. But it is not therefore to be inferred that the power to deal with suffrage which was exercised in providing for the restoration of the excluded States extends equally to the States whose rights in the Union were not compromised by rebellion. The conditions are different—so essentially different that it is impossible to confound them by an appeal to the possible requirements of the Republican Party, or the pretensions which it upheld during the war.

The Fourteenth Amendment was cited on Saturday, with a good deal of force, as a conclusive answer to Mr. BOUTWELL's proposition. The second section of that article impliedly concedes the absolute jurisdiction of a State over the privilege of voting. By laying down a rule in relation to the apportionment of representatives predicated on the possible exclusion from voting of a race or class for arbitrary reasons, the amendment clearly admits the constitutional right of a State to enact the distinction. Mr. BOUTWELL in the House and Mr. SUMNER in the Senate may have voted for the amendment with certain mental reservations upon this point, but the terms of the amendment itself are not susceptible of a second meaning. Indeed, in the discussion of the amendment, as well as of the Reconstruction acts, both Houses occupied ground utterly at variance with that now held by the representative from Massachusetts. Neither did anything, or tolerated anything, which can be construed into a denial of a State's right to regulate its franchise according to the will of its people. On the contrary, the interference with the suffrage in the South was uniformly discussed as exceptional in its nature, and depending for its vindication upon circumstances in no degree affecting other States. We have but to turn to the debates upon the Reconstruction acts to find that the leading men of the party in whose name Mr. BOUTWELL professes to speak virtually repudiated the pretension involved in his bill. Then and subsequently—especially in connection with a suggestion to republicanize Maryland by overriding local law—Congress committed itself to the doctrine that control over suffrage is vested in the States, and cannot be diverted except by constitutional amendment.

The action of Congress, and the principle to which it is thus committed, were explicitly indorsed by the Convention which nominated Gen. GRANT. The platform on which the Republican Party sought and obtained the approval of the country declares:

"The guarantee by Congress of equal suffrage to all loyal men at the South was demanded by every consideration of public safety, of gratitude, and of justice, and must be maintained; while the question of suffrage in all the loyal States properly belongs to the people of those States."

Mr. BOUTWELL asserts the opposite. The question of suffrage in all the States—he alleges—properly belongs to the General Government. He is, then, at issue with the Republican Party and with Congress as well as with the Constitution. And all he urges in behalf of his bill resolves itself into what he conceives to be expediency. He has figured up the chances of a suffrage amendment in the State Legislatures, and concludes that it would not at present receive the votes of more than twenty-five States. Seeing by this method no immediate likelihood of ingrafting universal suffrage upon the National Constitution, he falls back upon an imaginary right of Congress to do whatever it has [illegible] information as to [illegible]

[illegible] "convenient," [illegible] was the rectifying establishment. The exact relation of these parties to these two establishments was not [illegible] although the parties who were the nominal owners both swore that their connection with them was merely nominal, and that they took the position of pretenders for order to save BRAMMER and EGBERT, who were the real principals, appear as witnesses, and, this is just, carry on the business without giving the security to the Government which the law requires. The premises were seized in November, 1867, for alleged fraud, and were forfeited, but they were bought in when they were sold by the Marshal under the forfeiture, and the parties began to run again, although there was some testimony tending to show that after the sale there were other persons interested in, if not controlling it. In the following April the place was again seized. In December, 1867, these parties were indicted for frauds connected with the first run, and after the second seizure this indictment was found, charging frauds during both the periods in which the distillery was running. The offences charged were: removing the spirits from the distillery contrary to law, siding and abetting in such removal, and not keeping proper books in the rectifying establishment. On the last charge, however, the Government offered no evidence, but confined their testimony to the charge of removing spirits contrary to law. On this point the evidence, if the witnesses were worthy of belief, was very clear and full. The Government officers who made the seizure in November, 1867, testified to finding a pipe which led from one of the establishments to the other, having the semblance of a water-pipe, by which spirits could be run from the distillery to the rectifying establishment. They also swore to facts tending to show that the pipe was in use for this purpose when they made their appearance, and that a hose by which the connection was made was cut by one of the employes, who was himself called as a witness and testified to having cut it. The Government called as witnesses the two men, SCHURMAN and DRAKEMAN, who had acted as principals for these defendants, and they called also eleven of the men employed in the distillery, some of whom corroborated the evidence of the Inspectors as to what took place at the time of the seizure; others testified to seeing the cistern-room of the distillery opened on several occasions during both runs, when the accused were present, and that the spirits were run into the rectifying establishment by means of this pipe. The prosecution claimed to have shown by proof of the capacity of the distillery and of the time it was run, that the amount of tax which the Government should have received from this establishment, but had not, was over half a million of dollars.

So far as we can see from the evidence, the defendants made no attempt to controvert the existence of the connection between the two establishments, and, as long as that existed, it could require but very slight evidence to convict the parties of defrauding the Government. Honest men would see to it that no such means of fraud existed. Nor did they seriously controvert the claimed capacity of the distillery. As to the presence of the defendants on the different occasions when the cistern-room was wrongfully opened, the case stood somewhat differently. The contradiction of the evidence on that point was not so entirely within their power if the evidence was false, as on the other point. They undertake to show that the witnesses were not worthy of belief, because some of these very witnesses had made affidavits which had been sent on to Washington in an application for a release of the property, in which they had sworn to the entire innocence of the establishment of any fraud. The affidavits themselves, however, were not produced, and the weight of the evidence, as between the two oaths, if they were both taken, was pretty clearly with that which the witnesses gave upon the stand.

The jury seem to have found no difficulty, at any rate, in believing it, for, as we are told, they agreed at once in convicting BRAMMER and EGBERT, and the delay in their verdict was only owing to a doubt as to the propriety of convicting McLEARY, whose connection with the establishment was rather that of an employe than a principal. The defence was so weak that no one can wonder at the efforts which the defendants made to postpone or avoid a trial. But it makes it all the more a subject of wonder that they should have had the success in postponing it which they had. If the history of that part of the case could be brought out, we are sure it would prove interesting and instructive to the public.

England and China—The New Treaty and the Old Policy.

The treaty negotiated by Lord ELGIN in 1858 extended to fifty-one articles. That of Mr. BURLINGAME, just concluded, contains but three, at least the telegraphic summary gives us only three items as the basis of negotiation. These are:

First—That it is necessary to observe the existing treaty stipulations.

Second—That all negotiations shall be conducted with the Central Government and not with the local authorities.

Third—That before the inauguration of war, disputes shall be referred to the Home Government.

For these three articles, the Embassy had to wait three months, while owing to red tape or indecision, they were kept standing in the cold exposed to a stream of unfriendly criticism. The result appears too small for their pains, but it is large enough to constitute a victory and a success. The victory consists in making a treaty in the face of opposition, and the success in gaining all that they really desired.

The leading object of the mission was not to make a treaty with the United States, but to establish new relations with the Great Powers of Europe. Three of them have Asiatic possessions which menace the frontiers of China, while trade and other interests offer them strong temptations to interfere in her internal affairs. To provide against this, has now become a vital question with the Chinese; and their Embassy is [illegible] its accomplishment, will be a success, if not [illegible]

[illegible] would have left it to the chance of war. It [illegible] rather than to take advantage of her [illegible] that, after the Mission would have proved abortive, the Chinese have committed hostilities. The Office Great Powers cannot decline to do the same without placing themselves at a disadvantage, and the success of the Mission is the chief result.

On the old policy which England renounces in this third article, we have already published, voted in our columns, and shall therefore discuss it with a single remark. Her course in China thus far reflects but little credit on the political morality of Christendom. The discipline of a demoralizing traffic, like that known herself a quarrelsome bully, ever on the alert for a cause of war, and more than once pushing a trifling dispute into open hostilities even when she was manifestly in the wrong.

Instead of dwelling on these exhibitions, and yielding perhaps, to a temptation to give England more than she deserves in the way of censure, we shall indulge ourselves in a parting glance at the old policy of the Chinese.

If they have suffered rough treatment at the hands of foreign nations, they have themselves to thank. Their arrogance has always provoked hostility, and, in some measure, justified it. Thirty years ago the Mandarins at Canton rejected with disdain the communications of Lord NAPIER, the British Minister, because they were not marked with the characters pin, which means a "petition." They reported to the Emperor that they had done so because "on the outside of the envelope the forms and style of equality were used; and there were absurdly written on it the characters Ta Ying Kuo—'The Great English Nation.'" It was not without reason that JOHN QUINCY ADAMS asserted, in a lecture at Boston, that opium was not the cause of the war, but the little monosyllable pin.

The war settled the question for the seacoast, but that insolent pride still had a refuge in the capital. In 1850 a letter from the Queen of England congratulating the new Sovereign on his accession, was returned unopened; and the attempt to present it denounced by the Emperor himself as "impudent contumacy," because it had been brought in a steamer to the mouth of the Peiho, instead of being handed to the Mandarins at Canton. And in 1856 a letter of President PIERCE was contemptuously returned with the seal broken, but without an answer, because it had been forwarded by the Governor of Pekin instead of the Governor of Canton.

The Chinese needed another war, and it came. The occupation of Pekin by the Allies, in 1860, demolished the remains of their foolish pride; and they, in turn, are now begging for equal privileges.

What they ask and obtain in the present treaty is that England shall not weaken the Central Government by recognizing, in any way, the quasi independence of their provincial Governors; and that, in cases of dispute, the question of peace or war shall be decided by the Home Government, instead of leaving them exposed to hostile attack at the caprice of her officials in China.

In yielding these points, particularly the last, England renounces her old policy in favor of one which rests on a basis of justice and moderation; while the Chinese, on their part, reaffirm their determination to abide by all the obligations which they came under in accepting the treaty of Tientsin, in 1858. This is the meaning of the first article of the new treaty; and every one who has read the fifty-one articles negotiated, or rather dictated by the late Lord ELGIN, will readily understand how much it implies.

The San Juan Controversy and its Settlement.

Three treaties have been negotiated, and their protocols drawn up, by Minister JOHNSON, during his brief sojourn in England. The Alabama Convention overshadows the other two in public interest and importance; yet both interest and importance attach to the Naturalization question and the Northwest boundary.

Time was when, on San Juan Island, swords sprang threateningly from their scabbards; when Gens. SCOTT and HARNEY and Capts. PRIDEAUX and PRESSONSON were writing sharp letters to Gov. DOUGLAS and Capt. HORNBY, and getting sharp replies; when to Puget Sound was hurried a hostile British fleet carrying 167 guns and 2,140 men; while Col. CASEY, with all available United States troops, poured into San Juan, and, throwing up intrenchments, awaited attack. This was in 1859. Ten years have since passed, and the hostilities then happily averted have never broken out. A peaceful joint military occupancy of the Island of San Juan has been maintained during all this time; no collision whatever has taken place, and, so far as can be seen, none is likely to take place for ten times ten years to come.

And yet, it was and is a dangerous question to leave open; and accordingly in 1860 the British Government proposed that the whole question regarding the right to San Juan should be left to the arbitration of one of three minor Powers—Belgium, Denmark or Switzerland. The rebellion and the civil war broke off the negotiations, which have since been resumed and conducted to a happy issue.

It is a long story—this discussion of the Northwest water boundary—and yet its leading points are not difficult to apprehend. It begins properly with the century itself; for, as early as that, the British Government set up a title to the territory lying west of the Columbia, and, while the United States claimed the whole region west of the Rocky Mountains up to 54 deg. 40 min., Great Britain assumed to stretch her sovereignty as far south as the parallel of 42 deg.

At length, in 1846, to settle the "Oregon dispute," as it was called, the United States, after a forty years controversy, proposed, by way of compromise, to continue the boundary along the forty-ninth parallel, which would nearly bisect the disputed territory, giving a moiety to each Government. Great Britain consented. But observing that this parallel would cut off the southerly cape of Vancouver's Island, the British Government demanded that the whole of this island should be included in its domains. Accordingly the treaty was drawn up—June 15, 1846—in language designed to meet this point; and it [illegible]

[illegible] "Thence the boundary line of the United States and Great Britain, starting from the point last mentioned, shall follow the forty-fifth parallel of north latitude, or the channel which separates the continent from Vancouver's Island, to the entrance of that channel, called Fuca's Strait, and thence southerly through the middle of the said channel, and of Fuca's Strait, to the Pacific Ocean."

This phraseology seems simple, definite and clear. And yet therein lies the whole heat of the San Juan controversy.

If the reader should take a good map and run his pencil along the line here indicated, he would follow the forty-ninth parallel to the coast, and then turning southerly, he would almost infallibly continue it through the Gulf of Georgia and the broad Canal de Haro to the Straits of Fuca and so to the Pacific again. For, at first sight, this is the palpable route, he would hardly suspect another.

That is precisely the line which was understood to be the treaty line by every officer and commissioner, civil or military, of the United States, who ever had anything to do with the negotiations. It was so with those who drew up the protocol with the State Department at that time, and with the Senate who ratified the treaty. Undoubtly, however, the Hudson's Bay Company, fixing their eyes on the boundary line, observed the water between Vancouver's Island and the main land to be full of valuable islands; and, finding a narrow channel, called Rosario Strait, east of the deep and familiar Canal de Haro, they insisted the British Government to assert that this channel was the one referred to in the treaty.

Such was the origin of the San Juan controversy—to wit, in the verbal interpretation of treaty language. For, between the Canal de Haro and the Rosario Strait lies the Haro Archipelago, of which San Juan is the largest and most valuable. The British Government, claiming that the boundary line runs through Rosario Strait, would give the Haro group to British control, while our Government, claiming that it runs through the Canal de Haro, would give it to the United States.

We shall hardly be credited when we now add that the entire argument adduced in support of the British claim is a verbal quibble on what is called the "very peculiar wording" of the treaty. The language of Capt. PRIDEAUX, one of the British Commissioners appointed to settle the dispute soon after it arose, was that "Rosario Strait separates the continent from Vancouver's Island," while the Canal de Haro, which washes Vancouver's Island in one part, "only separates the island from the continent." That is the whole of the British argument; and is it conceivable that two-and-twenty years of diplomacy and several stout volumes have been devoted to this contemptible equivoque? Let us not call Hudibras satire; for surely the man who could "distinguish and divide a hair, 'twixt south and southwest side," or who could "force whole rivers, in despite o' geography, to change their site," is nothing to the British Commissioner with his pebbles and pebbles. SWIFT's couplet comes up with significance:

"Sponge all this difference should be,
'Twixt sweetbream and sweetbiddes."

On the other hand, the American claim has always rested on common sense, as well as contemporaneous evidence. In the first place, it rests on the fact that the sole purpose of deflecting the boundary line from the forty-ninth parallel was to give Vancouver's Island to Great Britain—this island and no other; not the Haro group, not San Juan. The present claim, therefore, conflicts with the reason urged by the British Government for what was itself a concession on our part,—namely, deflecting the due west boundary line at all. Secondly, the American claim brings forward a mass of contemporaneous documents which show that the Canal de Haro, and that alone, was mentioned in the original discussion of the question by Mr. McLANE, our Ambassador sent specially to England to settle the Oregon boundary; by Mr. BUCHANAN, who managed the treaty in the Senate, and who declared in so many words, "the line runs through the Channel de Haro," and by everybody else, English or American, who had anything officially to do with the question. And, finally, our Government proves by chart and plummet that the Canal de Haro is the main channel; that it is nearly twice as deep as Rosario Strait, and broader in every part, so that at least treble the volume of water rushes through it; and that it is mainly an open and free channel, while Rosario Strait is full of obstructions. With such facts, no wonder that our Government has insisted on its interpretation of the treaty.

MINOR TOPICS.

We have always believed that Spain would crush the Cuban revolt—as there is no doubt the Spanish Government is determined to use all its power for that purpose. The riot in Havana on Friday evening is the first outbreak of the rebellion in the Western Department; but it is impossible that the revolutionists should get possession of Havana, for the guns on the fortification of the Cabanas, opposite the city, could lay it in ashes, if that were necessary. The insurrection in the Eastern Departments holds its ground with remarkable tenacity; but, in the mean time, Spain is hurrying forward troops to her revolted colony.

The Tribune errs in speaking of the Bisdell-Eckel case as the first case of the conviction of whisky thieves. Over a dozen, large and small, have been convicted in the Brooklyn district and are now undergoing punishment—two of them, DEVLIN and ERNURY, being still in the Penitentiary. But the Tribune is quite right in insisting that the officials who permitted this swindling to go on, shall also be brought to judgment. The Eastern District has given an example in that matter also—as GAZZAMIGA, a revenue officer, implicated in similar frauds, was tried, convicted, and is now in State Prison. It is quite clear, from the developments of the Bisdell trial, that there are officials in this City who ought to be sent to keep him company. We trust they may be promptly called to account.

The women in Perryville, Ohio, recently mobbed a rum shop and destroyed its contents. The owner brought suit, but was beaten. We are a little curious to know on what ground the act of these women was defended and justified. We can understand partially that they would object to establishing a shop for the sale of liquor in their town; but where they get the right to destroy it, with impunity, we are at a loss to know. Are women at liberty to drive out of town everybody whom they do not like, and to destroy their property?

Our Court of Common Pleas has decided that the gift of a horse and wagon, as consideration for a public office, is valid and must be upheld. Of course, any gift—of money or anything else, for office, is equally valid. We shall, under this decision, expect to see a regular report of market prices for positions in the Custom-house, Post Office and Internal Revenue departments. If they are proper articles of trade, why should they not be quoted? Bribery is an obsolete word, and will soon be excluded from our dictionaries, though not from an official practice.

Here we are bowed down by taxation and see nothing for our money. The burdens would be borne cheerfully by the people, if they saw the results in improved roads, in good sewerage, or clean streets." This is not said of New-York, though it might be, but of the Italian City of Naples. It is curious to observe how little one great City sometimes differs from another, although the ocean lies between them, and their forms of government are quite as wide apart as they are themselves.

Bills proposing fresh grants for railroads still continue to be the order of the day at Washington. As a general thing they come from the roads which have received the largest amount of Government aid already. The appetite for Government subsidies, like some others, seems to grow by what it feeds on. There seems, too, to be a general conviction among those who want them that their chance of getting them will be a good deal better before the 4th of March than after. Gen. GRANT's remark that the public debt ought never to be increased so long as anybody is in favor of repudiating it, is not only just and true, but it has made a decided impression.

The Times has recorded the intention of the Grand Jury to suggest to the Legislature such an amendment to the now existing statute relating to concealed weapons as will declare the carrying of a loaded pistol a penal offence. Has even possible good results be looked for from such an enactment? It is offered as likely to afford protection to peaceable citizens, and certainly it will deprive them—and at how inopportune season!—of the only positive sense of security they at certain times possess. Respectable men, detained from their homes until a late hour at night, will surely not subject themselves to punishment by a violation of the law. But do those who urge the amendment think that the wretches who defy the Penitentiary, the State Prison and the gallows will share the same dread?

We are pleased to see the activity of Mayor HAYS. He is now giving some attention to the abominable condition of the streets; and though he has not much power in the premises, we have no doubt he will be able to discover some means of compelling Mr. WESTON to make a show of fulfilling the terms of his contract. Though Mr. HAYS's authority is restricted on all hands, he can do a great deal in the way of beautifying the City, and reforming its more disgraceful features.

The American claimants of Alta Vela—the guano of which will be recollected in connection with the impeachment trial—had better assert their claims very quickly. President BAEZ, of St. Domingo, has granted the guano product of the island as a guarantee for a loan of $2,000,000 from an English capitalist; and it is reported that, immediately on the completion of the contract, English vessels will assert their control of Alta Vela. Where is Judge BLACK?

Three hundred and seventeen public gambling-houses were closed in this City during the last year, through the workings of the Association for the Prevention of Gambling—at least, so it is claimed in the annual report. There are six hundred members of the Association, and its receipts for the year were $24,000. It is estimated that thirty millions of dollars are annually spent in the public gambling-houses of this City—most of it by men in mercantile pursuits, and country merchants visiting the City. The Association has never avowed its ability to put an entire stop to gambling; but it attempts, in divers ways, to decrease the number of visitors to gambling-houses, to withdraw their sources of revenue, and deplete their incomes, so that they may eventually cease to exist. The report describes the modus operandi of the gambling-house drummer, roper-in, or steerer, with his gorgeous appearance, fascinating manners, and costly style.

When Gen. KILPATRICK, on returning from South America some months ago, told the story of five hundred mummies rising from the grave, or rather being thrown up from the ground, at the time of the earthquake in Peru, there was a great deal of incredulity expressed about the affair. But our Lima (Peru) correspondent, in his last letter, gives some additional details, and adds another item to the abundant proof we have already had of the accuracy of Gen. KILPATRICK's account. The mummies were buried ninety years ago, and one of them, which our correspondent saw, is described as in the most perfect state of preservation, every joint and bone being perfect, and the iron gray hair being abundant. Those who have doubted KILPATRICK's mummy story must now take back their doubts.

Alexander Hamilton.

Local distance often lends, like distance of time, impartiality to the judgment formed of prominent men. When both are united the judgment becomes doubly impressive, especially so when foreigners are the judges.

Every one knows WEBSTER's brief but glorious passage about ALEXANDER HAMILTON's resuscitating the corpse of our credit. TALLEYRAND said (so we have always heard) to GEORGE THORNTON, who visited the French statesman in 1819: "I have known three great men in my life—NAPOLEON, HAMILTON and FOX." LUDWIG relates in his "Reminiscences of an Intercourse with Napoleon," that the keen-eyed and constructive historian walking with him in the Roman Forum, in 1822, said that of all public men America had produced, HAMILTON seemed to him a true political genius, and far the greatest of the time on the other side of the sea. NIEBUHR was a student in Edinburgh University, together with BROUGHAM, (they remained always friends,) when BURKE took HAMILTON from the world of action, and the latter Roman Historian always took the deepest interest in American affairs, and had taken it from his precocious boyhood, as he often told LUDWIG, then just on his return from Greece, where he had gone as Philo-Hellene, and staying with NIEBUHR, Prussian Minister at Rome.

In the History of the United States of America, by CHARLES FREDERICK NEUMANN, 3 vols., Berlin, 1865, a German work of great merit, there is, among others, this passage:

"And now ALEXANDER HAMILTON appeared for the first time as a creative and organizing mind—the first so of his contemporaries, and probably one of the very greatest legislators and statesmen of any time." In another passage, Mr. NEUMANN says: "HAMILTON belongs to those legislators, who have most thoroughly understood the fundamental conditions of human society, especially those of a Republic."

There are three kinds of public men: some stand prominently at their own time, but when they end their career no more remains of them than of a dead who dies of self-combustion. Others stand high, and remain high in history, although their line of reputation is generally an undulating one. There are some whose name steadily grows higher and wider for centuries after their death, and such is HAMILTON's. Some remarkable features and traits may be observed in Neumann's History of the United States. The second volume, for instance, is dedicated to President LINCOLN, and the dedication is dated: "Berlin, on the day when the Germano-American Gen. WEITZEL entered the rebel capital, April 3, 1865;" and the motto of this volume is from FRANKLIN: "America best cultivates what Germany brought forth."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Illustrations of Protection.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Persons sometimes not unnaturally wonder why the Democratic Party, which was so sentimental during the war, has not been swept out of existence, and how it manages to keep up a responsible and even formidable show of numbers. The answer is to be found in the follies of the Republicans—that is to say, of many of their active and leading members. These follies are of two kinds, invasion of personal liberty, as in the so-called temperance or prohibitory laws, and taxation of the many—often accompanied by a waste greater than the taxation itself—for the benefit of the few, as in our so-called protective legislation.

The beauty and wisdom of the latter are exemplified in Senator SUMNER's support of the recent bill imposing enormous duties on copper. Among other sage reasons for passing the bill, he said, "That it would be impossible to maintain the tariff system unless protection was made general."

In a little treatise published some eighteen months ago on the dangers of attempting to graft the "paternal" system of government upon a democracy, I wrote the following sentence, anticipating, as it were, the Senator's plea, which was not then so usual as it has since become.

"Government may put on a duty here and a bounty there, bolstering up special interests one after another, as they have strength and perseverance to urge their claims. The natural end of this is, that everybody clamorous enough to more or less 'protected,' which is like trying to win at roulette by putting money on all the numbers."

As some of your readers may be virtuous, or unsophisticated enough not to know what roulette is, and I have seen the game played in Germany, I may be allowed to say a few words in explanation of it. Briefly it amounts to this: there are thirty-two numbers on a table, and a ball is allowed to roll freely till it stops opposite one of them. Of course when the player puts his money on a number the chances are thirty-two to one against him, but if he wins he only receives twenty-eight times his stake, so that the bank makes twelve and a half per cent on all the money played, and this percentage may be taken to represent the waste after all interests are protected, which corresponds to a player covering all the numbers. The illustration, however, is defective in practice, because all interests do not succeed in getting protection. The strongest and most active obtain a large share; the weakest go to the wall. It is more like a cage full of monkeys in menagerie they are fed simultaneously; instead of each being satisfied with the portion assigned him, every monkey grabs at his neighbor's allowance, the stronger rob the weaker, and a great deal of monkey provender is spill in the process.

Will it be said that these illustrations are trivial and unworthy a great national question? No one can rate the importance of the subject higher than I do; but the absurdity of "protection" will sometimes eclipse its wickedness, however seriously one may wish to treat it. The plain state of the matter is this, during a long period of our national history our politics were founded on a compromise between two abuses. The South connived at Protection, and the North submitted to Slavery. The latter evil precipitated its own cure by a terrible convulsion, like a demon rending the body which it left; how long shall we put up with the former? A writer in the Free-trader recently said that there was a natural connection between "protection" and Slavery. The assertion seemed paradoxical, and contrary to well-known facts; yet I believe (post the nation) that it was fundamentally correct. What the writer meant (though he expressed himself too broadly and loosely) was evidently this: that there was an analogy between the foundations of the two abuses, the one robbing the laborer of his whole earnings, the other of part of them, and that the man, who in an evil moment of "protection" would mutatis mutandis have been a stubborn upholder of Slavery.

We are never weary of bragging about our freedom, our equality, and our democratic institutions; yet we allow a few persons here and there to tax—and tax in the most wasteful manner, the whole community; for the consumers are the whole community, without exception of age or sex, color or condition. Surely, while this state of things lasts, it becomes us to be more modest, and sometimes to admit that injustice and stupidity are not confined to "the effete Governments of the Old World."

C. A. BURTON.

Health of Children in the Public Schools—Letter from Superintendent Randall.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Your article of Friday last in reference to the health of the pupils of our public schools, deserves more than a passing notice. The interest recently manifested by the Press of the City on all that pertains to these institutions is indicative of a wholesome state of public opinion; and while the official reports and documents of the Board of Education, which contain full and explicit information on all the subjects discussed are not within the reach of the great body of those interested, it is eminently proper that such information should be furnished through the public journals, by those competent from their position or otherwise, to provide it.

Those of us who are in the daily habit of visiting the public schools, and inspecting the condition of every class—Commissioners, Trustees, Inspectors and Superintendents—are certainly wholly unaware of any such general or special unhealthiness as is indicated in the article referred to. On the contrary, no one, we think, could pass through these crowded school-rooms without being forcibly struck with the general air of cheerfulness, happiness and health. That exception to the state of things should occasionally come among nearly a hundred and fifty thousand children of all ages and of every locality, should not be matter of surprise. That in some instances the existing cases of illness should be traceable to over-study, or ill-ventilated or too crowded apartments, is by no means improbable. But that the general health of the pupils of our public schools is seriously affected or endangered from either of these, or from any other cause incident to their attendance upon these institutions, I believe to be untrue. These have been, and doubtless still are, serious defects in the provisions for perfect ventilation in many of our class-rooms; but for several years past the Board of Education and its officers, especially the Clerk, the Superintendent of Buildings and Repairs, have been actively, and thus far successfully, engaged in furnishing an efficient remedy. The constant pressure upon trustees and teachers for admission to these schools, and especially to the primary departments, and their unwillingness to exclude any applicant, render it exceedingly difficult to prevent occasional overcrowding of the rooms; but every possible exertion is made on the part of the general and local Boards to remedy this evil, as far forth as it is at all practicable. I have repeatedly presented the matter to the consideration of the Board, and know that everything that can be done under its authority to prevent or mitigate this evil, has been and will continue to be done. Meantime, the utmost care has been taken to prevent illness or danger of any kind, and no complaints of any specific nature to do so have hitherto, so far as I know, been made.

To the allegation that too much study is required of the pupils and too little regard paid to their physical training, it is perhaps sufficient to say that the facts do not warrant the assertion. The schools are in session during six hours of each day, with recesses varying from an hour to an hour and a half for recreation and lunch. The remaining four and a half hours, at most, after deducting the time spent in the opening exercises of each school, are devoted to hearing recitations and to occasional exercises in writing, drawing, French and music. The

[illegible]

Compressed Air as a Motor.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Upon a recent favorable expression of opinion by the Chicago Evening Journal, as to the use of compressed air as a motive power in shops, manufactories, and other mechanical establishments in lieu of steam, as a test, you indorse the idea in yesterday's paper, giving credit for the invention to "a Chicago man." In this you are mistaken. A patent was granted some time ago to Mr. CARYL, of Massachusetts, for the conveyance of this power through large service pipes, and no one can use the plan without publishing themselves to suit for damages, without that gentleman's permission. Mr. CARYL is well known in this City, having for a number of years been associated with Capt. EMERSON in building the caloric engine. He proposes to utilize his invention in a way that will be perhaps of more consequence to this community than to any other in America, viz., by applying it to the propulsion of street railway cars. The Greenwich-street road, which can not be profitably run by either steam, traction ropes, or other devices so far proposed, can be made a paying investment at once by this most simple plan. Mr. CARYL's idea is to lay between the rails a tube of boiler-iron, five feet in diameter, containing compressed air the whole length of the road. At the extremities, and midway between them—or say at intervals of twelve miles and a half miles—he places stationary engines, fitted with simple compressors and tanks, where the air is compressed, throughout the whole line of service pipes to the extent of say forty-five to fifty pounds. Each car has under it, or on its roof, a tank of sufficient capacity for a supply of compressed air to carry it from station to station, and this can be filled while the passengers are being let off and taken on at the stations. A tube conveys the power to a small engine as large as a good-sized coffee-pot, which works a crank on the front wheels, and the engine and whole apparatus are so simple that any man intelligent enough to drive a team of horses can handle them. This is absolutely all there is of complication, expense or mystery about it. The plan of conveying compressed air is as feasible as that of carrying water and gas through street mains. The Hoosac Tunnel was a failure until the engineers adopted this plan to work the wonderful Burleigh rock drills, that are boring through the mountain as regularly and easily as salt water current through a ship's side. The power in this case is directly conveyed through pipes a distance of one and one-fifth miles from the mouth of the tunnel, and the most delicate gauge shows no appreciable difference in the pressure throughout the whole distance. The engineers expect to find the same state of things when the pipe is three miles long, as with its present length. A practical engineer, (Mr. HASKINS) recently employed by the Chinese Government to erect some great works, wrote me from Hong Kong, "writes exactly that he "would not hesitate to carry compressed air through a two-foot pipe ten miles, without any perceptible loss for many months."

I have noticed several times recently that you have spoken appreciatively of the effort to introduce compressed air as a motor, and this induces me to ask a search of your columns for the above. If Capt. EMERSON is persuaded of the practicability of the plan, I am told, and I am also informed that compressed air has been used this season in driving a Burleigh drill on this island. The cost of trying the Caryl plan on the experimental section of elevated track in Greenwich-street would be so insignificant that it seems a pity that the parties interested should not do it, and thus solve a problem of vast importance to this ear-ridden, long-suffering community.

HORATIO.

New-York, Jan. 18, 1869.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theatrical.

The thirsting playgoer who has been subsisting since the New Year upon the drainings of last year's feast, will soon have reason for gladness again. Within a month the character of the local stage will be almost wholly altered. Shakespearean revivals, original comedies, new burlesques, fresh players, and new tragedians will contribute to this result. The change is not undesirable, nor will it be untimely. Public interest has of late diminished considerably toward the theatres, with one or two exceptions; and since the holiday matter lost popular audiences have admonished the managers that popular favor must be sought in new channels.

Some of the amended programmes are to be offered for consideration to-night, and indeed the current week will be enriched by three or four topics of interest in theatrical circles. The second act of the auction farce, which is to be performed this morning at Irving Hall, for the benefit of Mr. BOOTH, will furnish some stuff for gossip, since that celebrated artist, the Ticket Speculator, is expected to appear again in the principal part, and, as the phrase goes, "carry the house by storm." The opening of a second volume of "Humpty Dumpty's" absurdities, the return of "Solon Shingle" to New-York, and the opening of Mr. BROUGHAM's beautiful theatre of a thousand reflections, all to take place this evening, will help also to keep the playgoers alive for nine days at least, or until the next wonder comes along.

MR. BROUGHAM'S THEATRE.

Mr. BROUGHAM had the pleasure on Saturday evening of displaying to a happy assemblage of his critics and contemporaries the elegant little palace which he may be said to have hewn from the solid rock. May the success of our genial comedian's new enterprise be as firm as the stone in which it is cradled. Seldom has space been so economized as in this new home of mirth. The house, to the outside gazer, looks painfully narrow, but the happy idea of a genius in having the side walls of the interior plated with mirrors, affords a most agreeable illusion of immensity to the seated audience. These mirrors line the walls of the parquette and the dress-circle. Upon the walls of the gallery the pervading tint of the house prevails. This is blush-rose, neatly framed in white, with delicate boundaries of gold. The lower floor of the house is not divided, as in other theatres, into parquette and balcony circle, but is furnished with the convenient iron chairs now so popular, and is devoted to the orchestra reserves. Above these rises the balcony, with its boxes at either end much the same as at Wallack's, only here again the iron chairs are wholly used in lieu of sofas. There are also two rows of these chairs in the gallery circle, which is the only other division of the house. A neat vine, in ironwork, painted white and flecked with gold, fronts these two circles. The descent from the back to the front in both is rather precipitous, however, and calls for the nimbleness of the lively chamois in those who would make the passage to the foremost seats in safety. Nine hundred persons, it is stated, can be seated comfortably, and a thousand persons may be crowded into the place. The house empties through three doors, two of which open directly from the stairways to the upper circles. This is ample egress, and only that these stairways are also somewhat precipitous, gives the requisite appearance of safety. On account of the presence of the mirrors fewer gas jets are required to light the theatre, but the necessary illumination is furnished by a tasteful chandelier, suspended from the dome, modeled in representation of wax candles, and from half a dozen branches of similar lights placed at intervals in front of the first circle. The Boxes, of which there are four, are not permitted to obtrude upon the stage, but, as we have already stated, like those at Wallack's, are removed from the body of the house. The proscenium is formed by a slender column, and is considerably higher than wide; indeed, on account of the limited space from wall to wall on the stage, everything had to be built above or below, and for this reason so much of the old-fashioned, entangling machinery has been employed, that there is probably more room to hide tiny dramatic pains than may be found in many a larger concern. A new drop curtain by the veteran BUNNELL BARRY was exhibited on Saturday evening, the painting of which represents, within a clear ring broken here and there by a fold of drapery, a pleasant rural prospect of mountain and valley country. The first curtain is a heavy drapery of dark rose, with broad stripes of a lighter ground and figure; at the bottom a deep fringe adds weight and rich effect to this. To summarize, it may be stated that the architects and artists have prepared for Mr. BROUGHAM's visitors a theatre where every one may be at his ease, where the severest taste will not be offended by any undue ornament, and where one may nestle for the enjoyment of that evening's pleasure which Mr. BROUGHAM will undoubtedly furnish.

MR. BOOTH'S THEATRE.

Mr. BOOTH will not be long after Mr. BROUGHAM with his theatre and his magnificent dramatic company in the [illegible] of "Romeo and Juliet." The [illegible] and Mr. BOOTH's pencil among the scenery has been contributed by a particularly of youth and age, that is to say—by young Mr. WEIMAN and old Mr. HIXSON. The theatre will open on Wednesday evening, Feb. 3.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Between the incoming and outgoing entertainments, much amusement and plenty of excitement reigns in the other theatres.

"Last nights" are announced of the rewarding entertainments at Niblo's Garden, at Wood's Museum, and at the New-York Theatre.

"After Dark" will be withdrawn from Niblo's Garden on Saturday next, for LYDIA THOMPSON and "The Forty Thieves," who are to appear simultaneously next Monday.

At Wood's Museum, from which Miss LYDIA THOMPSON and her troupe are to decamp, busy preparations are in progress for a glittering production of "The Field of the Cloth of Gold" next week. For this engagements have been made with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. FLORENCE, Miss MOZART, and Miss ROSE MARSH, another blonde from England, who has just come over.

The Worrell Sisters are to take their leave of New-York this week, and on Monday next tragedy and BOUCICAULT will usurp the home of WORRELL and bonifs. The production of Mr. FULTON's new farce has been postponed till the return of the sisters.

Mr. JOHN E. OWENS commences an engagement for two weeks at the Broadway Theatre this evening, appearing in Solon Shingle and Peter Butterby. Miss ZOE is to follow Mr. OWENS and produce a new drama by Mr. FULTON.

The Bateley Troupe of performing Japanese, including the precocious acrobat "All Right," are to appear at the Tammany this week, in addition to the vast array of public entertainers who have already become popular there. This is understood to be the farewell engagement of the troupe prior to their return to Japan. The cunning and dexterity of its principals during their performances at the Academy of Music twenty months ago can hardly have been forgotten.

A company of variety performers give an entertainment of pantomime, song and dance at the Bowery Theatre now, between the two melodramas which are nightly played at that highly-spiced establishment. On Tuesday evening Mr. SAMUEL DRAKE is to have benefit at the Bowery, when, in addition to the "Colleen Bawn," a complete minstrel entertainment will be given by several volunteers from the various Ethiopian companies.

De CONNOVA lectures to-morrow evening, at Apollo Hall, upon "That Dog Next Door."

Miss LOUISA MOORE, who has been playing the character of Nina, in "After Dark," at Niblo's, has been called to England by the alarming illness of her sister. Miss MAY BAVILLE is to be substituted for her in this part.

Mr. LEWIS is to introduce a couple of startling gymnastics to the patrons of the New-York Circus to-night. These are the brothers BURANELLI, two Spanish gardeners who do an original and double trapeze act. The BURANELLIS it is stated, execute all the most difficult and effective feats of LEOTARD, and other noted flying-trapeze performers, together, making their flights and somersaults through the air simultaneously, but in opposite directions. The brothers BURANELLI will appear every night this week and at the Wednesday and Saturday matinées.

Prof. R. R. RAYMOND will this evening commence a short course of Shakespearean readings at the Packer Institute, Brooklyn. He will begin with "Much Ado About Nothing."

BRIEF NOTES.

On the 10th inst. a party of white men made a raid upon the Chinese laborers at Unionville, Humboldt County, Nevada, and forcibly expelled them from their homes, driving them out upon the desert, only because they were opposed to their earning a living there by honest industry.

Senator ROSS has written a letter to a friend in Kansas, reiterating his opinions in favor of a liberal extension of the elective franchise in that State. He urges that the blacks be at once permitted to vote, and thinks that the privilege will yet be extended to women.

A recent fire in Savannah, Ga., destroyed the valuable law library of Mr. HENRY R. JACKSON, and all his papers. He had no insurance on his books.

Gov. HOFFMAN has been petitioned to pardon a man sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment in the lock-up of Peekskill.

Newspapers throughout the country lament the disastrous effects of the weather this winter. It is to the credit of the Jacksonville Floridian that it makes no allusion to it. It thinks that the unusually cold weather destroyed the caterpillar, and that the cotton crop will be increased in consequence.

Ex-Gov. BRAMLETTE, S. S. NICHOLS and H. J. STITES, Judges of the Supreme Court, and several other eminent Democratic lawyers of Kentucky, have petitioned the Legislature of that State to pass an act admitting negroes to testify in courts.

Gov. HAYES has communicated to the Ohio Legislature the memorial for repairing the grounds inclosing the tomb of President HARRISON, with a recommendation that the State accept the guardianship of the tomb, as proposed.

A young lady in Hastings, Minn., has been made insane by "Plancheitis," and has been taken to an asylum.

Buffalo brewed last year 159,961 barrels of ale and beer, an increase of 5,714 barrels over 1867.

Many of the Rhode Island Republican papers recommend the nomination of Hon. PARDON W. STORRS, the present Lieutenant-Governor, for Governor of that State, but he declines to accept.

JOSIAH SIBLEY & Co., of Augusta, Ga., have purchased the stock in the Georgia Railroad owned by that city—1,161 shares—at ninety cents on the dollar, besides assuming to meet sundry payments on the city indebtedness.

The Mobile Tribune is a paper of tribulations. Its latest grouning is over the national debt, which it says will never be paid. The Government is already bankrupt; its crisis, and the people groaning under intolerable taxation, while the bondholders are living in idleness and finished security as the Roman patricians and French noblesse did before them.

The Ohio Senate has passed a bill raising the salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Court from $3,000 to $4,000. The Cincinnati Gazette says the amount is still too small, and urges $5,000—all the persons for a less amount being sinecures and shabby.

The San Francisco Bulletin was recently sued for libel in publishing some Police Court proceedings. The jury rendered a verdict for the defendant.

EDWARD W. HARRINGTON, of Manchester, has been nominated for Congress by the Democrats of the Second District of New-Hampshire.

Rev. Dr. MARSH, Professor of Systematic Divinity in the Seabury Divinity School of the Episcopal Church at Faribault, Minn., died on the 19th inst. His death was occasioned by the amputation of his leg on account of gangrene, resulting from a scalt corn. His father and grandfather both died of gangrene.

A merchant in Lewiston, Me., who some years since settled with his creditors by paying them fifty cents on a dollar, has been prosperous since, and last week voluntarily paid them the balance.

There are complaints throughout Georgia of a scarcity of laborers.

Hon. CHARLES SUMNER lectured in Cincinnati recently on the Humbugs of Anglo-Saxonism.

The Baltimore Gazette says that the order for the release of Lieut. BRAINE, which the Attorney-General issued by direction of the President, was [illegible]

THE MANUFACTURE OF WHISKEY.

The Government Theory—Test Case in the United States Court in Chicago.

From the Chicago Journal, Jan. 22.

In our column of law intelligence yesterday we announced the verdict—rendered about noon in the Furlong case, which had been on trial for some time in the United States District Court, before Judge DRUMMOND and a jury. As the matter involved is one of far more than ordinary importance, we now give a résumé of the case, and the principal points in Judge DRUMMOND's charge to the jury.

The Government, by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, its agent, started a theory under the Revenue law of 1866, after an examination of the various distilleries in the country, which was, that in distilling the distiller intended with his grain such a quantity of water, forty-five gallons of the meal and water combined, considered or represented one bushel of grain. Based on this theory, in order to find out the number of bushels claimed in any given distillery, the Government agents were instructed to measure the mash, ascertain the proportion of water, and see whether the return of spirits was properly made. If there was any discrepancy, the man charged to the distiller on the basis stated. Thus, if the distiller put into his mash-tub sixty-seven gallons of water to the bushel, he was charged with a bushel and a half of grain upon his report, and so measured up the matter to the Assessor. At least April the officers of the Government visited the distillery of JOHN F. FURLONG on such or like days. They measured the tubs, and upon a calculation from the returns it would seem, upon the theory of the Government, which is now incorporated into the law of July, 1866, that there had been improper returns.

A case, as stated, was agreed upon in open Court, to be a test case. Several indictments had been found, and Mr. FURLONG, who had paid an assessment of about $5,000, under protest, and who had served to recover the money back, consented to be the party to be tried. He was found not guilty, under the instructions of the Court, which were, in effect, as follows:

The defendant was a distiller in the spring of 1866. The law at that time made it the duty of the defendant to make or cause to be made true and exact entries, in a book to be kept by him, of the number of pounds or gallons of materials used by him; the number of gallons of spirits distilled; the number of barrels; the number of gallons sold, with the proof thereof, and the name and place of business or residence of the person to whom sold.

The first count in the indictment is that the defendant violated these provisions of the law in neglecting to enter in a book kept for that purpose the true quantity of gallons of spirits distilled; the quantity of materials used, also, that he neglected to enter in such book the number of gallons of spirits distilled; the number of gallons sold; the name and place of business or residence of the person to whom sold.

The law also declared that the distiller should, on the 1st, 11th, and 21st day of each month, or within five days thereafter, deliver to the Assessor or Assistant Assessor, an account in duplicate, taken from his books in the particulars hereinbefore recited, and verified by oath of all the facts occurring after the last day of the account preceding. The second count charges the defendant with having violated this provision of the law, in that he neglected to make to the Assessor, a true return on the 21st, 11th, or 1st days of each month, or within five days thereafter, from the 17th day of April, 1866, until the 1st day of May.

The law also declared that if any person removed any distilled spirits from the place where the same were distilled, otherwise than into a bonded warehouse, he incurred a penalty of fifty, and was liable to punishment. The third count in the indictment charges the defendant with having violated this provision of the law.

So that the offence charged in the indictment consists of three several items: In the first place, that he neglected to make the entry in his books, as required by law, of the amount of the materials used, and the quantity of liquor that he distilled, and what he had sold, and the name and place of business of the person to whom sold; secondly, that in the particulars just named, he did not in the quantity of material, and the quantity of spirits, and of the amount sold, true returns were not made to the Assessor; thirdly, that he removed the spirits that he distilled to a place other than to a bonded warehouse.

The question is, whether the defendant is guilty of all or any one of the offences charged in the indictment.

Every defendant, when he is arraigned before a court of justice, is presumed to be innocent. It is incumbent on the prosecution to satisfy the jury beyond a reasonable doubt that he is guilty of some one of the offences set forth in the indictment; therefore it is incumbent on the prosecution in this case to satisfy you, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the defendant is guilty in all or in some one of these particulars. The question for you to determine is, whether he is or is not guilty of all or any one.

It is alleged that he is guilty on two grounds: First, that he has not made a proper entry in his books as to the material used; second, that he has claimed that upon the evidence which is before you, as to the manner which was made, that it is a conclusion following from that evidence that he had more material than he has returned; Secondly, that he has not returned the proper quantity of spirits distilled, because it has been shown that he distilled more spirits than there appears to have been returned, because the material which it is clear he used would have produced a greater quantity of distilled spirits.

You will observe that the prosecution seeks to stay us inferred from a given state of facts. That inference, as I have already stated, must be the necessary and inevitable inference from that state of facts, in order to warrant the conclusion.

That is to say, it must necessarily follow that the product, under the circumstances which existed as shown by the evidence, under which this material was manufactured, that there ought to have been a greater product. As for example: Taking the distillery of the defendant, the machinery he operated, the material that he used, taking all these together, that the product ought to have been greater. If you think that the evidence leads to the conclusion, and there are certain circumstances which were within the knowledge and ability of the defendant to establish which might throw light upon it, and he has not done so, then, of course, the inference would be against the defendant; as, for example, if it appeared that in a case where the same kind of grain was used, and the same sort of machinery, the product was greater than the defendant has shown that he produced, this conclusion then it would seem, if there was any special character connected with it which has not been shown, and which it was incumbent on the defendant to establish, and he has not done so, the inference would be against him, precisely as in the case of the prosecution. If there is evidence which it is in the power of the prosecution to bring forward, to indicate that the defendant has committed the offence which is charged in the indictment, and it has not been done, then, of course, the inference is against the prosecution. For example, if there were Government officials examining the operations of this distillery and they had it in their power to see it operate, and what was going on and make manifest any wrong which the defendant was committing, and then have not done so, then the inference would be against the prosecution. The rule applies to the prosecution as well as to the defendant; that if upon a given state of facts there are certain conclusions necessary, inevitable, irresistible to be drawn, and there were other facts in the power of either party to produce, and they have not produced them, then these conclusions would follow. If there are any facts which would impair or affect those conclusions, and they have not been produced, then, of course, the conclusion would follow.

But I insist by this, that the defendant should not be convicted without the conclusions necessarily follow from the nature and character of the evidence, and beyond a reasonable doubt.

As stated yesterday, the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty."

Shocking Suicide—A Young Girl Throws Herself Under a Railroad Train.

From the Chicago Post, Jan. 22.

As the Geneva accommodation train, which left this city at 5:30 P. M. last evening, was coming into Denby, a station twenty-three miles distant, a handsome young girl, about 16 years old, named HANNAH WADSWORTH, daughter of a well-to-do farmer residing near that station, ran out and thrust herself under the cars, which passed over her, severing her head from the body and throwing it several feet away, and also cutting off one of her feet and crushing the arm. The cause of the terrible act is said to be the refusal of the parents to sanction their daughter's marriage with a young man of the neighborhood named MYERS, to whom she was attached. The remains of the unfortunate girl, which were found in about half an hour by the Sheriff of the County, who chanced to be passing, presented a most horrifying appearance, as they were gathered up for interment. In the pocket of the deceased was found a letter addressed to MYERS, saying that she had determined to end her life of misery, although some might think she was foolish in doing so, and bidding him an affectionate good-bye. She is said to have threatened to make away with herself on several previous occasions.

The train men knew nothing of the occurrence until they returned this morning, it having taken place at dark, and the girl evidently having taken the precaution not to place herself before the locomotive, which would probably have thrown her from the track, but to have lain down between the wheels of the cars.

The West Virginia Senatorship—Republican Caucus.

From the Wheeling (W. Va.) Intelligencer, Jan. 22.

An open caucus of Republican members of the Legislature to nominate an United States Senator was announced yesterday on the adjournment of each House, to take place at 3 o'clone in the afternoon. Upon the assembling of the members a motion was made pledging each one present to support the nominee of the caucus. This was resisted by several gentlemen, but chiefly by members from the Southwest, who said they had not yet had an opportunity to consult among themselves as to whom they would support. An adjournment till next Friday was moved, but this being voted down, and the resolution being passed, a number of gentlemen withdrew from the caucus, saying they were not ready to have their hands tied without their consent. The resolution to pledge members was adopted without a division, and no formal vote was proposed. This, however, after some consultation, was waived, and the caucus adjourned without action till Wednesday next, at 2 P. M.

The Harrison Boiler—A Safe Steam Heater.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16, 1869.

Messrs. Harrison, Jr., & Co.:

DEAR SIR: We most willingly and positively say to you that the fire at our storeyesterday was the last we shall make from any engineer or defect in the two Harrison boilers in our place of business. We have passed a searching examination to be satisfied of their safety by our own mechanics the first and they were found entirely perfect in all their parts. The slight damage done to the boiler outside the brickwork caused evidently by falling timbers during the progress of the fire.

The cause was simply a paper lodged in the flue and set on a piece of wood without any interposition of asbestos in the furnace, as the fire-doors were closed just as they had been left in the evening when there was plenty of water in the boiler, and not a spark left in the flue. Since we have had the usual course of the chimney examined, search made that the water has been drawn off to prevent freezing. As far as the boilers are concerned, they are now ready for use, and have been before the fire.

J. B. CALDWELL & CO.

"DEWITT'S OLD LONDON POOR GIN," a sure preventive of kidney complaints. Sold by all druggists. Depot, No. 8 Beekman-st. JOHN DEWITT & CO., Distillers, New-York. Advertisement.

Manufactory, Chicopee, Mass.—The only Emery Wheels for cutaway and all purposes of the trade. For sale by druggists. Depot, No. 108 Reade-st., New-York. Advertisement.

The "Franklin Sewing Machine,"

Is recognized in the world for its simplicity, durability and quality of its work. Call and see it in daily operation. For a practical testimonial I only competition.

J. H. RESNIK, No. 11 Broadway.

Room No. 12, New-York.

Colgate & Co.'s

LAUNDRY SOAP is now in pieces of economical and convenient size for use. For sale by leading grocers, and at the warerooms of the manufacturers, No. 55 John-st.

Chickering & Sons,

Manufacturers of

GRAND, SQUARE AND UPRIGHT PIANOS,

RECEIVED THE FIRST GRAND GOLD MEDAL, and the only medal awarded to any American house, AT THE UNIVERSAL EXPOSITION, PARIS, 1867. THE CROSS OF THE LEGION OF HONOR.

These were the highest awards of the Exposition, and the CHICKERING & SONS was the ONLY ONE so honored.

In the United States we have been awarded SIXTY-NINE FIRST PREMIUMS to direct competition with the leading manufacturers of the country, and the Great Exhibition in London we received the highest award given to any manufacturer in the United Kingdom, viz., Twenty-one Prize Medals, being more than twice as many as any other manufacturer from the leading houses of Europe.

WAREROOMS,

NO. 11 EAST 14TH-ST., NEW-YORK.

Between Broadway and 5th-av.

Dr. I. W. Lyon's Tooth Tablets,

FOR CLEANSING THE TEETH.

Recommended by the first dentists. Sold by all druggists.

Hair Dye. Hair Dye. Hair Dye. Thomas' Hair Dye. BATCHELOR'S Hair Dye is the best in the world—harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no ridiculous tints, but a natural black or brown. Sold everywhere, and properly applied at BATCHELOR'S Wig Factory, 16 Bond-st., N. Y.

We remove Black Patches, Freckles and tan from the face use Ferry's Mask and Freckle Lotion. Sold by all druggists.

For Black Worms and Pimples on the face use Ferry's Comedone and Pimple Remedy. Sold by all druggists and Dr. FERRY, No. 6 Bond-st., N. Y.

A Chance is yet Offered to Purchasers of Celebrated Gold Pens at one cent of manufacturers, at J. E. TERRY'S, No. 18 Union-square.

A. Morton, 23 Maiden-lane, New-York.

MORTON'S GOLD PENS.

MARRIED.

FOX—DEFRAU.—At St. Peter's Church, by Rev. Dr. Beach, SAMUEL L. FOX to ANNIE DEFRAU, daughter of L. A. and A. J. Defrau, all of this City.

DIED.

ARNOLD.—On Saturday, Jan. 23, at the residence of her son-in-law, Nicholas C. Smith, No. 264 West 34th-st., Mrs. CLARISSA ARNOLD, widow of the late Jacob Arnold.

The relatives and friends of the family are invited to attend her funeral at Kensington, Bloomingdale road, N. Y., on Tuesday, Jan. 26, at 2½ P. M. Trains leave New-York at 1 P. M.

BAKER.—In Brooklyn, E. D., on Friday morning, Jan. 22, JOSEPH ALEXANDER BAKER, in the 49th year of his age, after a prolonged illness.

Relatives and friends are respectfully invited to attend the funeral on Monday, the 25th inst., at 2 P. M., from Christ Church, Bedford-av., Brooklyn, E. D. Interment at Green-Wood Cemetery.

CAMPBELL.—In Brooklyn, on Saturday evening, Jan. 23, SAMUEL L. CAMPBELL, aged 35 years.

The relatives and friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend the funeral from Sixth-avenue Baptist Church, corner of Strong-place, and Dean-st., on Tuesday, 26th inst., at 2½ P. M.

☞ California papers please copy.

COMBINE.—On Saturday, Jan. 23, SAMUEL COMBINE, son of John Cornish.

The relatives and friends of the family are

ARKANSAS.

The Restoration of Quiet in the State—The Militia Reduced—Message from the Governor.

The following message was read in the Arkansas Legislature on the 12th inst.:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, Jan. 12, 1869.

Mr. SPEAKER: I am instructed by His Excellency, the Governor, to make the following report to your honorable body, in reference to military operations throughout the State since your adjournment:

Official information having been received of reported outrages and violations of the law in Ouachita County, and there being satisfactory evidence that a band of outlaws were infesting said county, a proclamation was sent with the officer having command of that district, placing the county under martial law, and no previous notice being promulgated, it was hoped by this means that the parties who had been prominent in the murders and outlawry there could be arrested and brought to punishment. A number of deserters have been already seized, and a determined effort will be made there to redeem the commonwealth of the laws, peaceable, and to bring to punishment all violators of the same.

The civil law has been restored in the counties of Polkin, Sevier, Little River, Lafayette, Calhoun and Conway, satisfactory evidence having been received from Gens. CANTRELL and UPHAM, and from other sources, that the laws can be executed there, and the officers and citizens who have fled from justice, who have driven out of these counties will be arrested and brought to punishment, if they should attempt to return again.

It is believed that the same steps can shortly be taken with safety in the balance of the counties still under martial law, in the southern part of the State. A more healthy state of feeling is rapidly becoming manifest; murders are ceasing altogether; many who have been driven away from their homes are returning; vivacious of the law are becoming more and more manifest, and the people who are the quiet and law-abiding citizens are becoming more secure and were hopeful for the future. From present appearances it is confidently believed that the civil law can be restored throughout the State in the remaining counties now under martial law, and the entire military force in the employ of the State be discharged by the 1st or middle of February. The number of men at first discharged is 1,000, Gen. CARRENDER's force is 931; Gen. MALLORY's, 330; Capt. GIBSON's, 254 men. The amount expended for the payment of the militia forces to the present time is about $20,000.

It is believed that the amount required to pay the militia will not exceed the amount that ought to be collected by the militia tax.

Respectfully,
J. H. BARTON, Private Secretary.

The Conflict of Authority at the Portsmouth Navy Yard.

From the Boston Transcript, Jan. 22.

We learn from Judge BAKER, the Naval Solicitor, that the four prosecutions instituted in the Supreme Court of Maine, against Lieut.-Commander CARPENTER and others for alleged obstruction of the Deputy Sheriff in his attempts to serve writs in the Kittery Navy-yard, have this week been disposed of as follows: Three of them have been nol pros'd by the County Attorney, and one of them arrested by exceptions to the full bench of that Court, which holds its July term in Portland. The Naval Solicitor took the ground that State Courts cannot take cognizance of crimes or offences committed within navy-yard limits, upon land purchased for that purpose by the United States, with the consent of the State in which the land lies. Judge TAPLEY, in order to bring this question of jurisdiction before the whole Court, instructed the jury to give a pro forma verdict against Lieut.-Commander CARPENTER, ruling, for the purpose of the trial, that the State Courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the Federal tribunals.

This question has not been considered open to discussion since Judge STORY, in 1819, in the United States Circuit Court, on the trial of CORTAK for murder committed within the limits of Fort Adams, in Newport Harbor, ruled that the Federal Courts have had jurisdiction in such cases. Doubtless the Supreme Court of Maine will so rule. If it should not, the case will be carried, by writ of error, to the United States Supreme Court.

The four prosecutions here referred to were instituted on complaint of a Deputy Sheriff of York County, Me., who refused, when coming to the navy-yard for the alleged purpose of serving process, to exhibit his precept to the officer in command, in conformity with the orders and regulations of the Navy—but instead on creaming at large throughout the yard, with a drawn sword, ship, searching for debtors or pretended witnesses, for culprits, and arresting sometimes watchmen and workmen at his pleasure, and thus disturbing the labor gangs, and exposing some $126,000,000 worth of public property to every risk against which guards and watchmen are intended to provide. On his refusal to exhibit his precept, he was ordered out of the yard, and refusing to go, was quietly, and with as little force as possible, expelled.

FINANCIAL.

California Pacific Railroad Company.

FIRST MORTGAGE TWENTY-YEAR SEVEN PER CENT.

GOLD BONDS,

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYABLE IN GOLD COIN.

COUPONS PAYABLE FIRST JANUARY AND JULY, AT NATIONAL PARK BANK, NEW-YORK.

FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX.

THE UNDERSIGNED NOW OFFER FOR SALE A LIMITED NUMBER OF THE ABOVE DESIRABLE BONDS, AT PAR, WITH ACCRUED INTEREST IN CURRENCY.

The total amount of Bonds authorized to be issued is $20,000,000,

LESS THAN $16,000 PER MILE.

THE LARGER PORTION OF WHICH HAS ALREADY BEEN SOLD.

THESE BONDS ARE SECURED BY A FIRST MORTGAGE ON THE ENTIRE PROPERTY OF THE COMPANY, including their valuable LANDS, WHARVES and WATER PRIVILEGES in Vallejo and elsewhere.

Total length of road, 180 miles.

Finished, fully stocked and equipped, and now running from Vallejo to Sacramento, or Stockton.

The monthly earnings on the portion of the road now open for business have been steadily increased on the entire road since its completion.

This road is the most direct route between San Francisco and Sacramento, reducing the time between the two cities to three and one-half hours.

Being superior in construction, equipment and management to any other road in California, it is rapidly gaining the entire business of the country, and the business must, and will, increase on completion of the road, and the bonds now offered, are secured and expected to arrive in February. The road will be completed early this season, and the bonds will, when the road is finished, yield income to an extent $2,000 (gold) per mile.

This road-bed is of most substantial character, permanent, solid and completely ballasted. The iron is of the best quality. The rolling stock and equipment are fully equal to any on the Pacific.

The country through which this road runs is entirely secure from either snow, ice or frost, and its agricultural resources surpass those of any portion of the Atlantic States. Prominent and experienced capitalists have secured by us from reliable parties in California, of the great present value and future prospects of this road, and we have no hesitancy in recommending these securities to our friends as one of the safest and most profitable investments, and in every respect reliable.

Either of the undersigned will receive subscriptions and deliver Bonds.

Government securities, at market rates, will be taken in exchange for these Bonds.

Circulars with further information can be had on application to either of the undersigned.

TURNER BROS., No. 2 Nassau, corner Pine-st.
E. M. JENNY & CO., No. 14 Pine-st., or to DARNEY, MORGAN & CO., No. 8 Exchange-place.

GIBSON, BEADLESTON & CO.,

BANKERS,

NO. 8 EXCHANGE-PLACE,

STOCKS, BONDS, GOVERNMENT SECURITIES, BREAD STREET, EXCHANGE and GOLD bought and sold on the usual terms.

INTEREST allowed on deposits subject to Checks, or Gold, subject to check at sight, the same as with the Clearing-House Banks.

ADVANCES made on all marketable securities.

CERTIFICATES of Deposit issued bearing Interest.

COLLECTIONS made on all points of the UNION and BRITISH PROVINCES.

LOANS negotiated on FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC PRODUCE, in store and afloat. We invite particular attention to this branch of our business, in which we have unusual facilities.

NEW-YORK AND NEW-HAVEN RAILROAD COMPANY.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS.

By virtue of the authority conferred by the Legislature of Connecticut, and duly approved at a meeting of the Stockholders, held on the 21st day of July, 1868, and in pursuance of a vote of the Company at that meeting, the Directors will dispose of such portion of the Stock of the Company, not heretofore subscribed for, as shall, on the 1st day of February, 1869, at 12 o'clock P. M., be stockholders, and shall severally elect to receive the same, $1,000 shares of new Capital Stock of this Company at par, in the proportion of one new share for every two shares so held as aforesaid, upon the payment of par on each new share, on the 1st day of April next, and the remaining $10 whenever the same shall be called for by the Board of Directors.

Scrip certificates will be given at the time of paying installments, and certificates of full-paid stock will be issued in exchange for such scrip certificates, whenever the full amount due on shares shall have been paid in.

Persons owning less than two shares, or more than a multiple of two, are advised to purchase or sell so that the number of their shares shall be two, or a multiple of two.

The Stock Books in New-York will be closed, and remain closed, from the 15th of March, both days inclusive.

By order of the Board of Directors.

WILLIAM D. BISHOP, President.

NEW-YORK, Jan. 18, 1869.

Note.—The remaining 15 per cent. will be called for from time to time as may be necessary to pay for additional improvements to the road and equipment.

Stockholders who have not yet signified their intention of taking their allotment of stock in the Company will please do so at once, and be prepared to pay the installment.

THE ANNUAL ELECTION FOR DIRECTORS of this Company will be held at the Office of the Company, No. 457 Broadway, N. Y., on the 1st day of February, 1869, between the hours of 11 and 1 P. M. JACOB R. MOORE, Secretary.

THE PUBLIC ARE CAUTIONED AGAINST purchasing Stock certificates of the New-York National Exchange Bank, Stock certificate No. 184, with blank power of attorney, dated Brooklyn, E. D., March, 1868, signed by Mary Ann Martin, and number stopped.

JOHN S. MARTIN.

ALL KINDS OF SOUTHERN SECURITIES bought and sold by LEVY & SONS, No. 6 Pine-st.

FINANCIAL.

BANKING HOUSE

JAY COOKE & CO.

NO. 20 WALL-ST.,

CORNER OF NASSAU-ST., NEW-YORK.

We buy and sell at the most liberal current prices, and keep on hand a full supply of

GOVERNMENT BONDS OF ALL ISSUES.

And execute orders for purchase and sale of

STOCKS, BONDS AND GOLD.

We have added to our office a Retail Department for the accommodation of the public desiring to invest in and exchange of Government Securities, the purchase of GOLD and INTEREST COUPONS and the sale of INTERNAL REVENUE STAMPS.

JAY COOKE & CO.

HATCH, FOOTE & CO

BANKERS,

AND DEALERS IN

GOVERNMENT SECURITIES, GOLD, STOCKS, &c.

Buy and Sell all issues of

U. S. BONDS

at MARKET RATES.

No. 12 Wall-st., New-York.

GREENBAUM, BROTHERS & CO.,

BANKERS,

NO. 34 BROADWAY,

NATIONAL PARK BANK BUILDING.

CHICAGO HOUSE: H. GREENBAUM & CO.

DRAFTS FOR $5 AND MORE

ON ENGLAND, IRELAND, SCOTLAND AND CONTINENTAL EUROPE.

BANKING HOUSE OF

Geo. Opdyke & Co.

56 Wall-st.

CORNER OF CEDAR-ST.

DEPOSITS received subject to check at sight, and interest allowed at the rate of FOUR per cent. per annum.

CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT issued, bearing interest, payable on demand, or after fixed dates.

COLLECTIONS made on all points in the United States, Canada and Europe. Dividends and Coupons also collected, and all usual business transacted.

ORDERS promptly executed for the purchase and sale of Gold; also, Government and other Securities.

LOANS negotiated.

VERMILYE & CO.,

BANKERS,

REMOVED TO

NOS. 16 AND 18 NASSAU-ST.

DEALERS IN ALL ISSUES OF GOVERNMENT SECURITIES AND IN GOLD AND GOLD COUPONS.

CLOSING PRICES.

NEW-YORK, Jan. 22, 1869—6 P. M.

	Gov.			Gov.
Registered, 1881	111	111¼	6-20 Coupon, '67	109¾	109⅞
Coupon, 1881	112⅝	112¾	6-20 Coupon, '68	109¾	109⅞
5-20 Bonds, 1865	108⅝	108¾	10-40 Registered	102⅝	103⅛
5-20 Coupon, 1865	110	110⅛	10-40 Coupon	103⅝	103¾
1-20 Coupon, '64	109⅝	109¾	Gold	132⅝	132¾
1-20 Coupon, '65	110	110⅛	U. S. Cur. Fcd	105	105⅛
6-20 Coupon, '67	110	110⅛
Jan. and July	105⅝	105¾

BUY AND SELL ON COMMISSION,

RAILWAY STOCKS, BONDS AND GOLD,

MAKING LIBERAL ADVANCES

INTEREST OF DEPOSITS.

HANNIBAL AND ST. JOSEPH RAILROAD COMPANY.

Sealed proposals addressed to William H. Swift, at Messrs. Ward, Candler & Co., No. 49 Wall-st., New-York, or to R. A. Watson, Treasurer, Boston, will be received until noon, THIRD, Jan. 26, for the sale of FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS of the Land Bonds of said Company to the undersigned, Trustees, in accordance with the provisions of the indenture of mortgage, dated April 1, 1868.

Circulars containing information, may be obtained at the office of the Company, in Boston, on SATURDAY MORNING, Jan. 23, and the accepted bids decided.

WILLIAM H. SWIFT,
SIDNEY BARTLETT,
NATHANIEL THAYER, } Trustees.

NEW-YORK, Jan. 18, 1869.

STAR FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY,
No. 35 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK, Jan. 6, 1869.

AT AN ELECTION HELD ON MONDAY, 4th inst., the following gentlemen were elected Directors of this Company for the ensuing year:

NICHOLAS MILLIKEN, FREDERICK MEAD,
LEVI AFGAR, CHAS. E. APTEGARTH,
D. S. MARSH, H. P. THURBER,
JAS. A. HARVIE, R. COCKCROFT WHITE,
C. W. J. MARDOLPH, BRANTUS V. KEMPT,
JOHN S. PUPPE, ALLAN MAY,
ALFRED T. SONE, CHAS. A. PERRY,
ROBT. FERGUSON, JAMES SULLIVAN,
JOHN B. SOLDANE, JAMES WALLACE,
OBAD. H. BROOKS, THOS. M. WHEELER,
JOHN H. BROOKS, WM. H. MOORE,
A. S. CHAMBERLIN, ADOLPH SCHERHARDT,
CHARLES SPEAR, CHAS. S. RICHARD,
WM. V. OWENS, T. C. KIMBALL,
JOSEPH WEIR, JAMES M. SQUA.
ALEX. SONNELLI,

NICHOLAS G. MILLIKEN of the Board held this day, unanimously reelected President. M. H. BRADLEY, Secretary.

THE GERMAN NATIONAL BANK,
OF NEW-YORK, Jan. 18, 1869.

AT THE ANNUAL ELECTION FOR DIRECTORS of this Bank, held this day, the following named gentlemen were unanimously elected Directors for the ensuing year:

WM. A. WHITLOCK, HENRY A. SEYFFE,
HERMAN SCHEDDY, HENRY W. SCHMELZEL,
HORACE E. CLARKE, CHAS. G. LANDON,
SIMON BERNHEIMER, CHAS. A. BALDWIN,
JOHN H. HAUSMANN, H. BRAUN.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board, WILLIAM A. WHITLOCK was unanimously reelected President, and HERMAN SCHEDDY, Vice-President, pro tem., in place of HENRY A. SEYFFE, resigned.

CHAS. H. WEYBURN, Cashier.

MERCHANTS' AND MECHANICS' NATIONAL BANK OF TROY.—Notice is hereby given that 4 per cent. of the stockholders, owning one-fifth of the stock of said Association, so far into liquidation as to authorize and direct the Association to pay the balance of its circulation to the stockholders according to law.

And the holders of the shares of the Association are hereby notified to call at the office of the Association and receive their respective portions of the assets ascertained and paid notes and other claims against the Association for surrender of the banking-house of said Association to the purchaser.

Dated Troy, Dec. 31, 1868.

By order of the Board of Directors.

THOMAS E. SICKLER, Cashier.

This Bank has reorganized as a State Institution, and will continue business as usual, under the name of the Merchants' and Mechanics' Bank of Troy.

SOWLES BROTHERS & CO.,

BANKERS AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

NO. 52 RUE DE LA PAIX, PARIS.

No. 52 State-st., Boston.
No. 16 Broad-st., New-York.

Make advances on American securities and cash collections and bankers and gold. Circular notes issued. Letters for Americans in Europe addressed to our care will be forwarded or delivered.

BROWN BROTHERS & CO.

COMMERCIAL AND TRAVELERS' CREDITS FOR USE IN THIS COUNTRY AND ABROAD.

AUGUST BELMONT & CO.

Agents for Messrs. SOLOMON, BELMONT, NICOLAS, AUGUST, JULIUS, OTTO, WILLIAM, JOHN, JAMES, ALFRED, PERCY, HENRY, JOHN, JOSEPH

SHIPPING.

PACIFIC MAIL STEAMSHIP COMPANY'S
UNBROKEN SERVICE
CALIFORNIA AND CHINA.
Passage, gold, from New-York to San Francisco:
First Cabin.....$150 Steerage.....$50
Second Cabin.....$100 Children.....$25
Steerage, at the above time, from Panama, $40 (which sum will be refunded on their return).
FOUR TRIPS A MONTH
On the 1st, 9th, 16th and 24th.
Passengers will provide themselves with bedding, except those who take the steamer of the 1st, which leaves on Sunday, thus the day preceding being enabled to procure bedding on Saturday.
Passengers provide themselves with provisions for the Isthmus and Pacific Ocean.
Passengers booked to and from Hamburg, Havre, Rotterdam, Antwerp, &c., at very low rates.
Drafts issued payable at any bank in Great Britain and Ireland.
For further information apply at the Company's office, No. 7 Bowling-green, New-York.
HENDERSON BROTHERS.

CUNARD LINE OF STEAMERS.
BETWEEN NEW-YORK AND LIVERPOOL, CALL-ING AT QUEENSTOWN.
FROM NEW-YORK EVERY WEDNESDAY.
EUROPA.....Wed. Jan. 20 | PALESTINE.....Wed. Feb. 3
TARIFA.....Wed. Jan. 27 | SIBERIA.....Wed. Feb. 10
RATES OF PASSAGE FROM NEW-YORK.
Cabin.....$120 Gold. | Steerage.....$35 Currency.
Passage tickets from Liverpool or Queenstown at equally low rates.
For freight or passage, apply at No. 4 Bowling-green.
E. CUNARD.

LIVERPOOL AND GREAT WESTERN STEAM COMPANY.
FOR LIVERPOOL.
Pier No. 4 North River, WEDNESDAYS.
ARABIA.....Wed. Jan. 27 | ARIES.....Wed. Feb. 10
SAXONIA.....Wed. Feb. 3 | ARABIA.....Wed. Feb. 17
NEVADA.....Wed. Feb. 10 | SAXONIA.....Wed. Feb. 24
ARIES.....Wed. Feb. 17 | NEVADA.....Wed. Mar. 3
Cabin passage, $80, gold; steerage, $35 Currency.
Tickets to Paris can be purchased here. Passage can be obtained on reasonable terms.
For freight or passage apply to
WILLIAM T. GUION, No. 11 Wall-st.
For steerage apply to
WILLIAMS & GUION, No. 10 Broadway.

NATIONAL LINE.
THE STEAMSHIP ERASMUS, CRAGG,
Will sail on SATURDAY, Jan. 30, at 10 A. M., from Pier No. 47 North River.
Passage to Liverpool or Queenstown: Cabin, $100; Steerage, with attendance, $35.
Through tickets from Liverpool or Queenstown, $35, currency.
Apply at the Company's office, No. 10 Broadway.
F. W. J. HURST, Manager.

FOR LIVERPOOL AND QUEENSTOWN.
The fine and fast steamships are expected to sail as follows:
KANGAROO (via Halifax).....Tuesday, Jan. 26, 1 P. M.
ERIN.....Saturday, Jan. 30, 2 P. M.
CITY OF BALTIMORE.....Saturday, Feb. 6, 12 M.
CITY OF CORK (via Halifax).....Tuesday, Feb. 9, 1 P. M.
ERIN.....succeeding SATURDAY and alternate TUESDAY, from Pier 5, North River.
RATES OF PASSAGE.
PAYABLE IN GOLD. | PAYABLE IN CURRENCY.
First Cabin.....$120 | Steerage.....$35
To London.....135 | To London.....$40 and £2
To Paris.....145 | To Paris.....$45 and £2
To Hamburg.....150 | To Hamburg.....$50 and £2
Mr. Johnson, M.D., or Mr. Cockrin, M.D., will be on board.
Branch Steamer.....Branch Pier, foot of Canal-st.
Passengers also forwarded to Havre, Hamburg, Bremen, Antwerp, and other ports.
Tickets can be bought here at moderate rates by persons wishing to send for their friends.
Further information may be obtained at the Company's Office.
JOHN G. DALE, Agent,
No. 15 Broadway, New-York.

STEAM TO GLASGOW AND DERRY.
THE ANCHOR LINE.
Splendid Clyde-built Steamers, are intended to sail
EVERY SATURDAY
From Pier No. 20 North River, at 12 o'clock noon, as follows:
BRITANNIA.....Saturday, Jan. 23 | INDIA.....Saturday, Feb. 6
COLUMBIA.....Feb. 6 | IOWA.....Feb. 13
EUROPA.....Feb. 13 | CALEDONIA.....Mar. 6
RATES OF PASSAGE FROM NEW-YORK.
Cabin, to Liverpool, or Derry, $80 and $90.
Excursion tickets, good for 12 months, $145.
Steerage, to Glasgow or Derry, $30; Intermediate, $35.
Passengers booked to and from Hamburg, Havre, Rotterdam, Antwerp, &c., at very low rates.
Drafts issued payable at any bank in Great Britain and Ireland, for any amount, at the rate of £1.
For further information apply at the Company's office, No. 7 Bowling-green, New-York.
HENDERSON BROTHERS.

CUNARD LINE OF STEAMERS.
BETWEEN NEW-YORK AND HALIFAX, CALL-ING AT BOSTON.
FROM NEW-YORK EVERY THURSDAY.
ASIA.....Thur. Jan. 21 | PALESTINE.....Thur. Feb. 4
TARIFA.....Thur. Jan. 28 | SIBERIA.....Thur. Feb. 11
RATES OF PASSAGE FROM NEW-YORK.
Cabin.....$80 Gold. | Steerage.....$30 Currency.
Passage tickets from Liverpool or Queenstown at equally low rates.
For freight or passage, apply at No. 4 Bowling-green.
E. CUNARD.

UNDER CONTRACT WITH THE BAHAMA GOVERNMENT FOR CARRYING THE ENGLISH MAIL.
THE ATLANTIC MAIL STEAMSHIP COMPANY
will dispatch the splendid iron clipper steamers,
ARIES, Capt. E. G. Chapman, and
ARIES, Capt. W. Lewis,
alternately, every Saturday, at 3 o'clock P. M., from Pier No. 4 North River, for Nassau, N. P., touching at Inagua, to connect with the mail steamers for Aux Cayes and Jacmel.
For freight or passage, having superior accommodations, apply to
WILLIAMS & GUION, No. 10 Broadway.

FIRST STEAMER
FOR GALVESTON, TEXAS, DIRECT.
Freight taken as low as by any other line.
The favorite steamship
FIRST,
W. H. GARDINER, Commander,
is now received on freight for Galveston, at Pier No. 4 North River, and will positively sail on WEDNESDAY, Jan. 27, at 4 o'clock P. M.
For freight or passage, having superior accommodations, apply to
SPOFFORD, TILESTON & CO.,
No. 10 Broadway.
No charge made for storage in Galveston for goods forwarded to the interior by railroad. Also, goods forwarded to Indianola, Lavaca and Brazos, without commission.

FOR NEW-ORLEANS,
CALLING AT HAVANA.
Carrying the United States mails.
The well-known and favorite steamship
SANTIAGO DE CUBA, MODIANO, Commander, will leave Pier No. 9 North River, on SATURDAY, Jan. 30, at 3 o'clock P. M.
SIDNEY.....Saturday, Feb. 6
DE SOTO follows.....Saturday, Feb. 13
RAPIDAN follows.....Saturday, Feb. 20
VIRGO follows.....Saturday, Feb. 27
Through tickets and through bills of lading given to Galveston, Indianola, Lavaca and Rock Port, Texas; Mobile, Ala., and to all points on the Mississippi River, to Nashville, Tenn., and to all points in Mexico.
For freight or passage apply to
LIVINGSTON, FOX & CO., No. 46 Broadway.

FOR MOBILE,
VIA FERNANDINA ROUTE.
The Florida Railroad Company will dispatch the side-wheel steamer
ALABAMA, Capt. Lockwood,
SATURDAY, Jan. 30, at 3 P. M., from Pier No. 9 North River, foot of Warren-st. Cargo delivered alongside of the steamer free of cartage. Freight taken at lower rates than any other line. Through bills of lading issued to Montgomery, Selma, Gainesville, Greensboro, Marion, Uniontown, Demopolis, Meridian, Enterprise, Macon, Columbus, Jackson, Vicksburg, Natchez, Shreveport, Galveston, Brazos, Lavaca, Indianola, Rock Port, Texas; Nashville, Tenn., and all points in the interior of Texas, Arkansas and other lines.
Has connection with the steamships for Pensacola, Apalachicola, Savannah and Charleston.
For freight or passage apply to
J. F. PATTERSON, Agent, No. 114 Chambers-st.

FOR NEW-ORLEANS DIRECT.
THE CROMWELL LINE.
Steamships of this line will leave Pier No. 3 North River, at 3 o'clock P. M., as follows:
GEO. WASHINGTON.....Saturday, Jan. 23
SOUTH.....Saturday, Feb. 6
For passage, first and second class, or freight apply to the agents, H. B. CROMWELL & CO., No. 48 West-st.

U. S. MAIL TO HAVANA.
ATLANTIC MAIL STEAMSHIP COMPANY
Sailing regularly every THURSDAY, at 3 o'clock P. M.
EAGLE, Capt. R. L. Lawrence, Thursday, Jan. 28.
MORRO CASTLE, Capt. T. Ryan.....Thursday, Feb. 4.
COLUMBIA, Capt. E. Van Santvoord.....Thursday, Feb. 11.
For freight or passage, apply at the office, No. 152 Front-st.
C. W. PRESTON, Jr., President,
No. 152 Front-st.

FOR CHARLESTON, S. C., THE FLORIDA AND CUBA, WITHOUT TRANSHIPMENT.
The new and splendid steamship
SARATOGA, C. Barrett, Commander, will sail for the above ports on THURSDAY, Jan. 28, at 3 P. M., from Pier No. 5 North River.
For freight or passage, having superior accommodations, apply on board, or to
A. ALEXANDER & SONS, 84 Wall-st.

NOTICE TO SHIPPERS BY PACIFIC MAIL STEAMSHIP COMPANY'S PANAMA sailing on MONDAY, Feb. 1, at 12 o'clock P. M.
Freight received until 4 o'clock P. M. SATURDAY, Jan. 30.
All bills of lading must be signed before sailing of the steamer.
For freight or passage apply at the Company's office, No. 6 Bowling-green.
F. R. BABY, Agent.

BOARDING AND LODGING.

SUPERIOR ROOMS, WITH BOARD, IN THE CENTRE OF THE CITY, at the Union Hotel, 271 Broadway, opposite the City Hall. The rooms are large and well ventilated, and have gas, hot and cold water, and all the modern improvements. Terms, $4 per week. Apply to C. F. COLT, Proprietor.

No. 103 EAST 30TH-ST., ONE DOOR FROM PARK-AVE., to let with board, on the first floor, another room, to let with board, on the third floor.

No. 21 WEST FIFTIETH-ST., BETWEEN 5TH and 6th-avs., to let with board, one large room, single or for a family.

BOARD.—LARGE PLEASANT ROOMS ON SECOND floor, suitable for one of the family, or two respectable gentlemen, with board, in a private family, in a pleasant house, with all the first-class modern improvements. Address with references, A. C. O., Box No. 40 Post Office.

FIFTH-AV., OPPOSITE THE BREVOORT HOUSE.—Elegant suite of rooms, with private door if required; also, a single room, with board, in the first-class modern house, No. 21 Fifth-av.

A SMALL PRIVATE FAMILY RESIDING IN A MODERN HOUSE, WITH GAS AND HOT AIR, would let a large front room, handsomely furnished, to a single gentleman, with board. Address LANGDALE, Box No. 111 Post Office.

TO LET—IN NINTH WARD, PARLOR AND BEDROOM, furnished, with partial board, to single middle-aged gentleman; family private. Apply at No. 60 Greenwich-st.

NO. 52 EAST 15TH-ST., NEAR IRVING-PLACE.—Furnished rooms, with board, on the second floor; with board, to a family or party of gentlemen; reference given and required.

NO. 4 EAST 19TH-ST., ONE DOOR FROM 5TH-AV., furnished apartments, three rooms en suite, with gas and hot-water conveniences, to let with private table only.

WANTED—BY A GENTLEMAN AND WIFE, A PUBLIC house, or select hotel, between 23d and 42d sts. Address A. S., Box 3,068 New-York Post Office.

NO. 133 EAST 20TH-ST., NEAR LEXINGTON-AV.—Two or three gentlemen can find a comfortable home in a private family; reference exchanged.

RAILROADS.

LONG ISLAND RAILROAD.
Leave Jamaica—6:30 A. M., Mail, main to Greenport; 7:15 A. M., Northern Express, stopping at Glen Cove, Port Jefferson, Stony Brook, Port Stanton, Setauket, Huntington and Glen Cove; 5:45 P. M., Passenger, and way stations, to Port Jefferson; 6:30 P. M., Mail, to Greenport, Sundays excepted. Leave Brooklyn, Sunday train at 9 A. M., from Hunter's Point Ferry, Northport, Huntington, and Glen Cove.
L. M. SANDS, Superintendent.

ERIE RAILWAY.—TRAINS LEAVE DEPOT FOOT OF CHAMBERS-ST., AS FOLLOWS:
6 A. M.—Day Express, for Rochester, Buffalo, Dunkirk, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and all points West and Southwest.
8:30 A. M.—Way Train, Daily, for Otterville and intermediate Stations.
10 A. M.—Express Mail, for Dunkirk, Cleveland, Cleveland and Chicago.
3:15 P. M.—Way Train, for Middletown and intermediate Stations.
4 P. M.—Way Express, stopping only at Hoboken, Paterson, Passaic, Rutherford, Hackettstown, Stanhope, Lafayette, Oxford, to Hackettstown, Warwick, Otisville, Port Jervis, Deposit, Hancock, Susquehanna, Binghamton, Owego, Ithaca, Geneva, Canandaigua, Rochester, Batavia, Attica, Buffalo, Dunkirk, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, and all points West and South. By this Train Sleeping Coaches will run through to Buffalo, Rochester and Cincinnati, without change.
4 P. M.—Emigrant Train, Daily, for the West.
And Way Trains for Hackensack, Paterson, Passaic and Paterson, at 8:30 and 11:30 A. M., 2 P. M., and 7 P. M. (12 M., Saturday, and 6 P. M., Saturday, instead of 7 P. M.). Trains at 11 o'clock P. M. (Sundays excepted), and 12 M. (Saturdays), for Hackensack, and 6 P. M. (Saturdays, instead of 7 P. M.), for Paterson and Port Jervis.
Tickets for Passage, Baggage Checked through to Rochester, Dunkirk, Cleveland, and Cincinnati, without change of coaches, and in direct connection with all Southern and Western lines.
Newly furnished and luxurious sleeping coaches attached to all night trains.
Tickets can be obtained at the Company's office, No. 241 Broadway, and Depot foot of Chambers-st., New-York; also, at Jersey City Depot, Jersey City.
WM. S. KAHLER, Agent. R. RIDDLE, Gen'l Pass. Agent. Gen'l Sup't.

HUDSON RIVER AND HARLEM RAILROADS.—On and after MONDAY, Nov. 24, 1857, trains for Albany and Troy, connecting with Northern Railroad, will leave New-York as follows:
6 A. M. Express train via Hudson River Railroad, Saratoga and Hudson River Railroad, stopping only at Yonkers, Tarrytown, Sing Sing, Peekskill, Fishkill, Hyde Park, Rhinebeck, Tivoli, Barrytown, Rhinecliff, Kingston, Saugerties, Catskill, Athens, Hudson, Stockport and Stuyvesant. Drawing-room cars from New-York to Rochester, connecting with the evening express for the West via outer North or south Shore Lines.
10 A. M. Express train via Harlem Railroad, 6th and 4th-avs., connecting at Chatham with Western Railroad for Lowville, Rome, Utica, Canandaigua, Auburn, Rochester, Buffalo, Dunkirk, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, Western Union, and at Troy with Boats for Saratoga, Scotland, Burlington and the North.
11:30 A. M. Express train via Hudson River Railroad, connecting at Albany with Boats for the North. Drawing-room cars attached to this train through to Troy.
2:30 P. M. Express train via Hudson River Railroad, stopping only at Yonkers, Tarrytown, Sing Sing, Peekskill, Fishkill, Hyde Park, Rhinebeck, Tivoli, Barrytown, Rhinecliff, Kingston, Saugerties, Catskill, Athens, Hudson, Stockport and Stuyvesant. Drawing-room cars attached to this train through to Albany with Western trains, and at Troy with trains for Saratoga, Scotland, Burlington and the North.
4:30 P. M. Express train via Hudson River Railroad, connecting at Albany with Boats for the North. Drawing-room cars attached to this train through to Albany.
6:30 P. M. Express train via Hudson River Railroad, stopping only at Yonkers, Tarrytown, Sing Sing, Peekskill, Fishkill, Hyde Park, Rhinebeck, Tivoli, Barrytown, Rhinecliff, Kingston, Saugerties, Catskill, Athens, Hudson, Stockport and Stuyvesant. Drawing-room cars attached to this train through to Albany.
11 P. M. train via Harlem, Western Railroad, with sleeping-cars attached, connecting at Albany with early trains for Buffalo and Dunkirk, Niagara Falls, and at Troy with trains for Saratoga and the North.
A Freight train will leave the Hudson River Railroad from New-York to Albany, daily, at 4 P. M., and Harlem Railroad, daily, at 4 P. M., and Saturdays excepted, at 12 M. Freight will be received at Harlem Depot, Fourth-st., corner of Madison-av, until 4 P. M., and at Hudson River Depot, Chambers-st., until 4 P. M., and delivered at Albany and Troy in advance of the Passenger trains.
Also, a Sunday train via Harlem Railroad, leaving Chatham at 5 P. M., and arriving at Albany at 10 P. M. Also, a Sunday train via Hudson River Railroad, leaving New-York at 4 P. M., and arriving at Albany at 10 P. M.
Fare as low as by any other route. Tickets for sale at the Depots, and on board the cars.
WM. H. VANDERBILT, Vice-President.

NORTHERN RAILROAD OF NEW-JERSEY.—Trains will leave New-York for the Falls of Ramapo, daily, at 7 A. M., and 4 P. M., and Sundays, at 4 P. M. Leave Ramapo, daily, at 8:30 A. M., and 5 P. M., and Sundays, at 5 P. M. Leave Piermont, daily, at 9 A. M., and 6 P. M., and Sundays, at 6 P. M. Leave Nyack, daily, at 9:30 A. M., and 6:30 P. M., and Sundays, at 6:30 P. M., arriving at New-York at 11 A. M.
WM. H. VANDERBILT, Vice-President.

STEAMBOATS.

FOR BOSTON, VIA NEWPORT AND FALL RIVER.
BY THE OLD FALL RIVER LINE.
REVERE
NEW-YORK AND BOSTON.
NEWPORT AND FALL RIVER, TAUNTON, NEW-BEDFORD and CAPE COD TOWNS and NANTUCKET.
Rates of fare and freight always as low as by any other regular line.
One of the Magnificent Steamvessels,
Leaves Pier, No. 2 North River, foot of Murray-st., at 4 P. M. daily, Sundays excepted.
By this route Passengers can take train from Newport at 4 A. M., and arrive in Boston at 8:30 A. M., in time to connect with all Northern and Eastern trains, and without disturbing their sleep. Tickets for sale at the Boston, Newport and Fall River R. R. Ticket Office, on board the boat, and at 152 Broadway.
Baggage checked through to Boston, Providence, Newport, and all points on the Boston, Newport and Fall River R. R.
Fare, $1 50. Freight as low as by any other line.
Tickets for Passage, Baggage Checked through, and Freight Bills for sale at Pier, foot of Murray-st., at the Boat, and at 152 Broadway.
J. LITTLEFIELD, Agent.
New-York, Aug. 20, 1857. No. 10 Broadway, N. Y.

STONINGTON LINE.
TO BOSTON AND PROVIDENCE.
GREAT INSIDE ROUTE—SHORTEST AND MOST DIRECT.
Fare always as low as by any other line.
The splendid steamships
STONINGTON and NARRAGANSETT,
Capt. Wm. H. John, Capt. Geo. S. Hull,
From Pier No. 2, foot of Jay-st., North River,
at 4 P. M.
Arriving ahead of all other lines.
Tickets and all information secured at the principal hotels, at the Office on the Boat, and at Dolt's Express office, No. 241 Broadway.
P. S. BABCOCK,
President Stonington Steamboat Company.

FOR NEW-HAVEN, HARTFORD, &c.—Steamboat trains leave Jersey-city for New-Haven at 3:15 and 11 P. M., connecting with railroad.

MARBLE MANTELS.

MARBLEIZED SLATE MANTELS.
In great variety and of taste from $10, $12 $1, $17 $2, $22 to $60 and upward.
THE FREDERICK SLATE COMPANY.
ALSO,
Hearths, Tiles, Chimney Pieces, Sinks, Urinals, BILLIARD TABLE BEDS.
Slabs, plain and enameled. Slate work made to order. A discount to the trade.
Factory, Fifth-st., Williamsburg, Middle Granville, N. Y.
Warehouse and Showroom,
48 West Broadway, Between Chambers and Reade-sts., New-York.
FREDERICK SLATE, Manager.

MARBLE MANTELS, HEAR STORES, Marbleworks, No. 81 1st-st., near Ave. A.

MARBLE AND SLATE MANTELS OF the latest designs, at very low prices, at A. ELBERT Marble Works, 124 and 126 East 13th-st., near Ave. B, N. Y. Mantels put up in the country. Out this one.

MARBLEIZED SLATE MANTELS, HEARTHS, TILES, &c., FROM THE ELEGANT DESIGNS. T. S. STEWART, No. 218 West 42d-st., near Broadway. Branch, No. 506 8th-st.

CLAIRVOYANTS.

A TEST—MRS. VERNON, THE GREAT INDEPENDENT Eccentric Entranced Clairvoyant, gives advice on the future, prosperity in business; reveals all events through life, and tells the day and hour when married and name, which proved true in any case who visits her. No. 364 West 34th-st., below 7th-av. Tests not admitted.

165 BOWERY.—MRS. WIDGER, CLAIRVOYANT, tells all you want to know, losses, misfortunes, sickness. Medicines for all diseases, &c.

SHIPPING.

FOR SAVANNAH, SEMI-WEEKLY.
BLACK STAR INDEPENDENT LINE.
The first-class steamship THAMES will leave Pier No. 9 North River, on SATURDAY, at 3 P. M., and MONTGOMERY on SATURDAY, Jan. 30, at 3 P. M.
For freight or passage apply to
E. LOWDEN, Agent, No. 10 Wall-st.
Cabin passage, $20.

HAVANA, SISAL AND VERA CRUZ.—New-York and Havana Mail Steamship Line, calling at Key-West, for Havana, Sisal and Vera Cruz, on FRIDAY, Jan. 29, at 12 M., P. M., from foot of Barclay-st., North River, for Havana. For freight or passage, apply to
E. ALEXANDER & SONS, 84 Wall-st.

NOTICE TO SHIPPERS BY PACIFIC MAIL STEAMSHIP COMPANY'S PANAMA sailing on MONDAY, Feb. 1, at 12 o'clock P. M.
Freight received until 4 o'clock P. M. SATURDAY, Jan. 30.
All bills of lading must be signed before sailing of the steamer.
For freight or passage apply at the Company's office, No. 6 Bowling-green.
F. R. BABY, Agent.

HORSES AND CARRIAGES.

FOR SALE—A PAIR OF GOOD HORSES, CHEAP, at 7 years old, 15 hands high, and have been used to carriage. Inquire of WM. H. TUCKER, 41 Cedar-st.

FOR SALE—A YOUNG HORSE, 5 YEARS OLD, 15 hands high, and a good roadster. Inquire of WM. H. TUCKER, 41 Cedar-st.

A FINE COUPE HORSE FOR SALE—Warranted sound and kind. Apply at 60 Bleecker-st.

A VERY STYLISH BROWN HORSE—Warranted, 7 years old. No. 69 Fulton-st., Brooklyn, store stable.

FOR SALE—A PRETTY BLACK MARE, 15½ hands high. To be seen at 18 Bleecker-st. Price, $100.

CITY REAL ESTATE.

FOR SALE—NINE FIVE-STORY CORNER STORES, on Grand-st., between Wallace, Elizabeth and Mulberry-sts.
ALSO,
The Sale, Fixtures, Property—The five-story dwelling, Nos. 32 and 34 Pike-st., near South-st., running through to Rutgers-st., about 40 feet wide each; will be sold together or separately. Apply at 206 Pike-st.

STABLE FOR SALE—IN WEST 37TH-ST., Bloomingdale, 40 feet by 100, in good order. To let, with coachmen's house in rear of lot, $1,000. Convenient for some of the stables on Madison-square. Apply to HOMER MORGAN, No. 2 Pine-st.

FOR SALE—THE STORE AND LOT, NO. 88 Pine-st., located nearly opposite West Broadway, and will be leased to responsible tenant. Apply to HOMER MORGAN, No. 2 Pine-st., or to the premises.

FOR SALE—THE TWO EXTRA-SIZED HOUSES, Nos. 40 and 42 Beach-st., southeast corner of Hudson-st., fronting the new Hudson River Freight Depot; the lots unbroken 100 feet of ground. Apply to HOMER MORGAN, No. 2 Pine-st.

BROADWAY.—FOR SALE—A LOT 24x100, OR 25 feet wide near to Niblo's Hotel, with possession May 1, 1858. Apply to HOMER MORGAN, No. 2 Pine-st.

FOR SALE—SEVERAL LOTS ON THE BOULEVARD and 10th-st., adjoining Lots at Fort Washington, and extending across to White Plains. Terms easy. G. LEMPRIERE, No. 26 John-st.

FOR SALE—FOUR LOTS OF GROUND, EACH 25 feet front, south side of 115th-st., 200 feet west of 10th-av. Apply at No. 3 Bedford-st. Price, $1,000 each.

FOR SALE—A DOUBLE STORE IN MURRAY-st., near Broadway Church, with or without the adjoining house. Apply to HOMER MORGAN, No. 2 Pine-st.

A LIST OF HOUSES, BUSINESS PROPERTY, tenements, and lots mailed free by STANLEY DAY, No. 102 Broadway.

COUNTRY REAL ESTATE.

FOR SALE.—WESTCHESTER COUNTY—the farms, being nearly the center from on the Harlem Railroad, between Williams Bridge and Woodlawn Cemetery.
TRENTON, N. J.—200 acres in the City, with large commodious buildings, well adapted for a large Hotel or residence on the Route; can be divided into building sites advantageously.
St. Louis, Mo.—Pine Bluff, highly located, free of incumbrance, 1 to 4 A. Apply to Mr. Gerard, 1 Pine-st., or property in Philadelphia, Baltimore or Boston, or for good improved State bonds. Inquire of or address, Apply to THEODORE R. WETMORE, No. 31 Pine-st., Room No. 3.

A NEW SETTLEMENT ONLY TWO HOURS' RIDE; now fully established, easy and free terms, one dollar down and one dollar per week; 10 acres settlers only at $25 per acre. No fever and ague, water and air plant only 45 miles from New-York City on Railroad.
Papers and maps sent free. Address
R. CAMPBELL, No. 189 Broadway, or
Rockaway, Ocean County, N. J.
See this place before buying your Southern property. The most healthy country known—air cures consumption.

ORANGE, N. J.—VILLAGE VILLA SITES AND farms, a great variety, beautifully situated, one hour from New-York, for sale low. Also, cottages, ready furnished, to let for the season, or year. Apply BLACKWELL SMITH, No. 26 Broadway, or at the office, 1 A. M., Orange, corner Main and Orange-sts., 1 to 3 P. M.

DESIRABLE REAL ESTATE AT ORANGE, N. J.
HAMILTON & WALLIS,
No. 1 Nassau-st., corner Pine.

A LIST OF RESIDENCES, FARMS, Lots, building sites, (Westchester County my specialty,) mailed free by STANLEY DAY, 102 Broadway.

BROOKLYN REAL ESTATE.

FOR SALE—ON BROOKLYN HEIGHTS, THE 3-story and basement house, with brick front, and cob-roller, Nos. 2 and 4 Clark-st., corner Columbia; terms easy. For permits to see the houses apply at No. 157 Columbia-st., Brooklyn.

STORES, &C., TO LET.

OFFICES TO LET IN TIMES BUILDING, Nos. 38, 39 and 40 Park-row.
On second, third and fourth stories. They are large, spacious, and splendidly lighted from front and rear. The building is thoroughly fireproof, thereby saving all charges of insurance and hazard incident to fire.
Inquire of GEO. JONES, Times Office.

TO LET—IN NEWARK, N. J.—THE PROPERTY known as the Union Building, opposite the Center-st. Depot, the first floor and basement to be divided as the tenant may elect; the upper portion of the building is a large hall, 50x100 feet, well adapted for a first-class boarding-house or hotel. The location is unequaled, being only 20 feet from the depot. If the hall is not taken, it will be divided into stores. Possession immediately. IRVING & BELKNAP, No. 38 William-st., Room No. 4.

TO RENT—ON BROADWAY, NEAR BROOME-st.—Three first floors, 25 feet front by 90 feet deep; to be made to accommodate, and will be let about May 1, 1858, to a tenant who is New-York for the sale of dry goods or other business, or business of the city. Address at once Box No. 1,324 Post Office, or R. RUBY, No. 302 Broadway.

FACTORY AT GREENPOINT—TO LET, IN THE BRANCH METALLIC LIFEBOAT FACTORY, a large building, 50x100 feet, with an excellent light, and admirably adapted for manufacturing purposes; good room and double adjoining; lot 50 feet front on the East River; rent, $1,000. ALLEN, Union Hall, No. 97 Front-st., 1 to 3 P. M. L. A.

TO LET—THE "STEWART HOUSE," NO. 842 Broadway; possession can be given by first of March; one of the best locations in the City of New-York for a restaurant and lodging-house. Apply to JOHN A. STEWART, or to ELUSH, No. 302 Broadway, or P. at Office, Box No. 1,324.

TO LEASE FOR A TERM OF YEARS—A plot of ground, 25x75, West-st., between Franklin and Harrison sts.; also a plot of ground 25x100 on Washington-st., near Gansevoort-st. Apply to FREDERICK CLARKSON, No. 16 Wall-st.

TO LET—ONE OF THE BEST CORNER STORES on Fulton-st., Brooklyn; an excellent stand for the trimming and trade; rent very low. Inquire of the premises, 1 Fulton-st., or of JOHN HODLE, No. 251 Fulton-st., up stairs, Brooklyn.

LEASE OF HOUSE AND STORE FOR LEASE, in the very best location on Broadway; also stock of furniture and fancy goods if desired. Apply to the premises, 1 Broadway, commencing from between 1 and 3 o'clock, at No. 26 Broad-st., Room No. 1.

TO LET—IN BROWN BROTHERS & CO.'S building, Nos. 59 and 61 Wall-st., offices suitable for bankers, brokers or lawyers. Building is fire-proof and thoroughly heated by steam. Apply to the Janitor, Room No. 61 Wall-st.

TO LEASE—THE NORTHEAST CORNER OF 7th-st. and Bedford-st., size, 25x80; improvements will be made to suit. Apply to WM. & E. S. CRUIKSHANK, No. 35 Broadway.

TO LEASE—THE TWO LOTS ON THE NORTH side of Grand-st., about 50 feet west of Hudson-st., with 25 feet each lot, being about 50x100 feet. Apply to WM. & E. S. CRUIKSHANK, No. 35 Broadway.

OFFICES TO LET.—DESIRABLE OFFICES in the new building, corner of Pine and Water-sts. Inquire of TALLER, WILLIAMS & CO., No. 120 Water-st.

TO LEASE—THE SECOND, THIRD AND fourth floors of the first-class store, Nos. 369 and 371 Grand-st. Apply to WETMORE & CO., No. 2 Pine-st.

TO LEASE—FOR A TERM OF YEARS, NO. 5 Wall-st., adjoining the Merchants' Exchange. Apply to ABNER L. RIX, No. 32 Pine-st.

TO LET—FURNISHED REAR OFFICE ON 1st floor, in Pine-st., between Broadway and Nassau-st. Address, stating business, Box 381 Post Office.

DWELLINGS TO LET.

TO LET IN NEWARK, N. J.—DWELLING-house located No. 3 Mulberry-st., one minute's walk from depot of Center-st. Depot; contains 10 rooms, basement and cellar, cistern, with kitchen and two small rooms for storage; water and gas; marble mantles; a few vines trained on the front; in excellent repair; rent, $300; basement will started for Spring; possession immediately. IRVING & BELKNAP, No. 38 William-st., Room No. 4.

TO RENT—AND FURNITURE FOR SALE—A first-class four-story high-stoop house, located on East Eleventh, near Fifth-av.; rent $1,000 per annum. The furniture is new and elegant, and cost more than $4,000; is to be sold with the house for $2,000 if taken before 1st February. Apply to MOSES MORGAN, No. 2 Pine-st.

TAMMANY HALL.—TO LET, A FIVE-STORY building for a respectable boarding-house or restaurant; in complete order. Apply to JOHN A. VAN BURKIRK, corner of 4th-av. and 16th-st.

HOUSES & ROOMS WANTED.

WANTED—TO RENT A MACHINE SHOP, fitted up with steam power, &c.; location in West or Greenwich Village; would purchase if suited. Apply to S. J. SHERMAN, No. 115 Fulton-st., up stairs, Brooklyn.

LOST AND FOUND.

$175 REWARD.—STOLEN, IN WEST 14th-st., on the morning of the 21st inst., A GOLD HUNTING-CASE WATCH and VEST CHAIN; maker's name, T. F. Cooper, owner's name engraved in case; and a key ring with a small key and a gold seal. Address 1 Fulton-st., Jersey Railroad Company; also the above Westchester Gentlemen's Company, in name of Charles Baltimore. All persons are cautioned against purchasing the above property, as I have the bill of sale, and no questions asked, by returning the watch and bands to C. E. RAIN, No. 38 Broadway.

$50 REWARD.—LOST OR STOLEN, OPEN face watch, No. 11,808, for Shades United States in-to the power of the Engineer; the watch is of Swiss manufacture, and engraved on the back of the cover, "Alfred Shades, Engineer." Address, Engineer, Box 1,324 Post Office, or R. RUBY, No. 302 Broadway.

LOST—BETWEEN BROADWAY AND BROOKLYN, West Washington-place, a Russia leather pocket-book, containing about $50 and a railroad ticket to Poughkeepsie. Not finding it the subscriber is anxious to get it at the Times Publication Office.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

BROADWAY THEATRE.
MONDAY EVENING, JAN. 25, 1858,
With a new and original Comedy, in two acts, by Mr. John Brougham, entitled
THE BRAHMIN'S REVENGE;
OR, THE MYSTERIOUS MARRIAGE.
Mr. Brougham will appear in the character of Sir Hugh Hamilton, Mr. Lewis Baker, Mr. Chas. Fisher, Mr. Blake, Mr. Chas. Pope, Mr. Chas. Wheatleigh, Mr. Chas. Wells, Mr. Chas. Wood, Mr. Chas. Wyatt, Mr. Chas. Wyman, Mr. Chas. Zeigler, Mr. Chas. Zeigler, Mr. Chas. Zeigler

VIRGINIA.

The Present Status of the State—Reconstruction Earnestly Desired—Forced Sales.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LYNCHBURG, Va., January, 1868.

There are graver reasons than those personal or partisan ones, which follow the undoing of what has been done, in the business of framing a constitution for this State, with the view of its speedy admission into the Union. The industrial interests of the State should not be subjected longer to the evils which result from unsettled relations with the United and so unstable State Government. The status of the Commonwealth should be finally settled in the speediest manner practicable. We have gone through the disturbing process of ejecting a convention; of the framing of a constitution by that convention, and of a thorough popular discussion, pro and con, of the provisions of that instrument. The people are now ready and anxious to vote without further ado. They would be glad if Congress, upon advising informally with Gen. GRANT, would relieve the singularly framed Richmond Constitution of any provisions which their own sense of justice and propriety may suggest as proper to be eliminated; but whether thus modified or not, being the regularly framed Constitution, they are ready to ratify it or not as it may be. They are willing to ratify it, even with its imperfections, as a means of showing, among many things, especially one thing, to wit, their loyal desire for reconstruction under any term that Congress may deem proper and sufficient. They do not desire to give a halting and qualified testimonial of this desire. They are unwilling to have members in their Chambers, or the body in its lobbies, with leaning petitions for this and that form and condition of reconstruction. Their language is: "Let Congress and the incoming Administration fix the terms, upon their competence and with the lights before them, and we will ratify."

It is the language of the great majority. The proceedings of the Committee that have gone to Washington are wholly foreign to the tone and temper of the people at home. The Democratic minority will not ratify negro suffrage, under either the Alexandria or the Richmond Constitution. But the great body of the people will ratify whatever is submitted to them by authority of Congress. They do not sympathize with any movement to substitute irregular issues or revolutionary proceedings for the regular line of action marked out by the Reconstruction acts.

But the body of the people desire reconstruction by the most direct and speedy method, for grave industrial reasons, aside from the loyal ones which have been indicated. I do not suppose that ever before in the history of civilization was such a quantity of improved lands offered at as low prices as are now offered in Virginia. Let any one consult the advertising columns of the Evening State Journal of Richmond, which gives official publication to all cases in bankruptcy, and let him also consult the weekly papers published by land agencies in this city and in other towns of the State, containing advertisements of the hundreds of farms which these agencies offer for sale, and he will be thoroughly convinced of the truth of my very broad declaration. I have seen it estimated that 500,000 acres are advertised in bankruptcy alone. I have no doubt that a still greater amount is offered at private sale, and under decrees of the regular Courts. The majority of these lands are offered at prices that barely cover the cost of the improvements. The Mud itself goes in at less than the Western Government price of $1 25 per acre.

The temptation offered, by these low rates, to Northern capital and emigration, is very great, and such as will not occur again, in all probability, for a century to come. When, in addition to the low prices, we consider the excellence of the climate, and the advantages of a refined and educated society, we may claim that the attraction is such as to defy all competition; and that nothing is needed but speedy reconstruction and a settled and stable Government, to fill up the State with Northern emigration, and to bring their capital and industry which spread thrift and prosperity broadcast over any land.

In view of this particular state of affairs in the internal economy of Virginia, you will readily perceive how deeply interested our people are in a prompt and cordial acceptance of any plan of reconstruction which Congress and the new Administration may prescribe. If the proceedings which have already been taken be set aside, and we are required to begin anew the business of constitution-making, and to go through a second period of political agitation, bitterness and vituperation, the greatest conceivable injury will be done to the economical interests of the State. It is a calamity to the farmers that their lands must be sold at ruinous prices; but the loss to individuals will be compensated to the community by the large influx of Northern population and capital which the low prices of real estate attract. But if political agitation be renewed, and the State be again thrown into the chaos of an angry political agitation, emigration will be kept at bay, and the community will gain nothing, while individuals will lose everything.

BLUE RIDGE.

INDIANA.

Hon. Daniel D. Pratt, the New United States Senator.

From the Cincinnati Commercial, Jan. 28.

HON. DANIEL D. PRATT, the newly elected Senator from Indiana, is a native of New-York, and graduated at Hamilton College in that State, before he was 21 years of age. Soon after graduating he came to Indiana, first stopping at Lawrenceburg, where he had relatives residing, and soon after removing in 1834, to Rising Sun, to take charge of the company at that place. At the end of a year he resigned his position of teacher, to the great regret of both patrons and pupils, and went to Indianapolis, where he entered the law office of the late Hon. O. H. Smith, then one of the leading lawyers of the State. During Mr. Pratt's term as a law student he acted as private secretary for Gov. NOAH NOBLE, and he also became acquainted with many of the prominent men of the State. Gov. NOBLE was, at that time, in the United States Senate from Indiana, and, seeing that young PRATT had real merit, prevailed upon him, in entering upon the practice of the law, to settle at Logansport (the home of Gen. TIPTON,) at which Mr. Pratt has ever since resided. Mr. PRATT devoted himself closely to his profession, and soon obtained a most extensive and lucrative practice, extending throughout the entire northern part of Indiana. From the first he took stand in the front rank, and to-day he is regarded as one of the first lawyers of Indiana.

During Mr. PRATT's term as a law student he acted as private secretary for Gov. NOAH NOBLE, and he also became acquainted with many of the prominent men of the State. Gov. NOBLE was, at that time, in the United States Senate from Indiana, and, seeing that young PRATT had real merit, prevailed upon him, in entering upon the practice of the law, to settle at Logansport (the home of Gen. TIPTON,) at which Mr. Pratt has ever resided. Mr. PRATT devoted himself closely to his profession, and soon obtained a most extensive and lucrative practice, extending throughout the entire northern part of Indiana. From the first he took stand in the front rank, and to-day he is regarded as one of the first lawyers of Indiana.

Mr. Pratt was a Whig during the distinct life of that party, and took a deep interest in the success. He was always ready to advocate its cause or speak in its defence, but rather declined than sought the honors. In 1841 he was the Whig candidate for Congress against GRANDER N. PRICE, but was defeated. We think he was again defeated by PRICE in 1843. Mr. COLFAX defeated PRICE in the next election. Mr. PRATT has several times been a member of the State Legislature. The Whig, and afterwards the Republican Party, would have given him the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor or Governor on more than one occasion; but he has always manifested any movement in that direction. He was elected a member of the House of the Forty-first Congress from the Eighth District of his State, leading his opponent 1,287 votes.

Mr. PRATT is a man of commanding personal appearance, being six feet and three or four inches tall, and weighing over three hundred pounds. He is a remarkably strong man, enough so to be almost a herculean athlete. He was a democrat of the Jackson school, and probably the most prominent man in that assemblage who could make himself heard and understood throughout the wigwam. Many of those who were present on that occasion will remember with prodigious vitality. Many a hoarse speaker in connection with his powerful lungs were told of the fact. He is not only as able, but a pleasant speaker, and, whether in the Court-house or on the stump, always commands the most marked attention. In private life, a man of pure morals; in public life, a man of enlarged and liberal views; in his profession, a man of ability, and one who will receive from the best attention of men of his profession.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

Evangelization of Spain—Services in St. George's Church.

Ever since the inauguration of the recent political changes in Spain, and the declaration of religious liberty throughout that land, the Tract Society, the Bible Society and the Board of Foreign Missions have been earnestly interested in an effort to stimulate and assist, by every means, the latest germ of Protestantism in that country, which has so long struggled against civil and religious bigotry. In furtherance of this object, and in response to a public notice to that effect, a large congregation of the friends of the Tract Society and Foreign Missions assembled last evening in St. George's Church, (Dr. TYNG's,) corner Sixteenth-street and Stuyvesant-place. After the singing of a hymn, Dr. TYNG offered up an eloquent and impressive prayer, that Christian Spain might lift up the chains of our Christian people now bound upon her, lift to life those who dwell in the darkness of perversition and bigotry, into the purer light and liberty of the Evangelical truths of the Gospel of Christ. He then followed in a brief address, stating the object of their assembling as being to kindle a warm and deep Christian interest in aid of the Tract Society, in its endeavors to assist, backed by the aid of Bibles, tracts and other religious publications in the Spanish language, the work of evangelization, now so providentially inaugurated in Old Spain and the South American States. St. George's, he said, had ever been interested in the great Christian work, welcoming all of every Evangelical denomination who wished to bear a part with them therein at one in Christ Jesus, and if the day ever came when his Church would lend with coldness or indifference this great work, so intimately, and, indeed, inseparably allied with their Christian faith, he hoped his eye might not behold it.

The reverend doctor then introduced Rev. J. C. FLEMING, recently from Spain, who repeated the story of the Royal Military at A, a position not to be guaranteed in Christ's dominions, he happened to visit Gibraltar where the English had planted their forts and his soul, and as he wandered through the streets the sound of a tolling bell fell upon his ear. Supposing it to be a Catholic church, and he being inclined to worship, he entered to enter, but the bell as it swung back and forth seemed to sound solemnly the invitation, "enter, enter." He did enter, and instead of finding the old familiar paraphernalia of the Romish Church, he saw a plain Scotch Presbyterian clergyman, who preached a plain but sincere Christian sermon, which touched the young man's heart, and he believed and sought for the truth in the Bible, through which he was led to the knowledge of salvation as it was in Jesus. He immediately began to teach his countrymen the way of salvation. Soon he was arrested and thrown into prison, whence, after fourteen months, he was released only to enter the gallies, and finally through the procurement of the Christian alliance had his sentence mitigated to banishment. When he left there was a charm of Christian earnestness and sincerity which impressed and encouraged every Christian who came in contact with him. But the seeds of disease had been carried from the damp inquisitorial dungeons, which soon after laid his frail form low in death. In the last words to which his spirit gave utterance before taking its flight upward he said, "O! Lord bless poor Spain—poor Spain!" After some further remarks on the necessity and duty of the Christian community to take advantage of the occasion now presented of doing God's work, he concluded with an eloquent tribute to the earnest, fervent and zealous Spanish Protestants, whose hands they are now called upon to strengthen and uphold.

Rev. Mr. BEAUCHAMP, a missionary to Brazil, and who arrived here only within a few days, described that country as also ripe for the work of evangelization, equally as in Spain. In eight years there had arrived from the churches, with a regular attendance of two hundred members, and more throughout the country swell organization. He represented, he said, nine millions of souls; for those nine millions there were but nine Christian teachers, one to a million. Surely the fields are already white unto the harvest. The country he described as one of the finest, literally "every prospect pleases and only man is vile."

Short addresses were also delivered by Drs. GURNEY and ADAMS, commending it as the imperative duty of the Christian Churches to come forward at this time and prove their faith by their works. Dr. GURNEY mentioned the efforts of the Tract Society in furnishing the missionary books for the great Christian work now going on in those lands so long enslaved by the most repulsive and detestable of all tyrannies—religious intolerance. A collection was then taken up in aid of the object for which the meeting was held and the congregation was dismissed with a benediction.

Archbishop McCloskey's Discourse in Aid of the Poor.

St. Patrick's Cathedral was last evening filled to repletion by a congregation drawn thither for the purpose of hearing a discourse by the Most Rev. Archbishop MCCLOSKEY. The proceeds of the address are to go to aid the poor of the City visited by the Society of St. Vincent de Paul. Although the price of admission was fifty cents, long before the hour announced for the delivery of the address (8 o'clock) the spacious edifice was filled in every part, so that when the Archbishop ascended the pulpit not even standing room could be had. The new and powerful organ which has lately been put up here was also formally opened on the occasion. Prof. GUSTAVUS SCHMITZ, organist of the Cathedral, commenced the musical exercises. The discourse was begun the Professor performed the overture to William Tell, which brought out in an admirable manner the capabilities of the new instrument. A large and powerful choir then sang the Laudate Dominum, the soprano solo being exquisitely rendered by Miss CARRIE GIRARD.

The Archbishop, in commencing his discourse, thanked the vast congregation for their presence on the occasion, which was, he said, a gratifying and consoling evidence of the sympathy they felt for the needy ones of the flock, whose sufferings, at all times great, are rendered greater still by the rigors of a Winter's season. A special appeal on their behalf was not needed, as it was ever cheerfully responded to. He would, therefore, occupy their time by speaking on a subject which, though not novel, would by virtue of its own intrinsic importance commend itself to their attention; he would speak of "The Relation of the Church to the Bible, and of the Bible to the Church." By the Church he meant to be understood as alluding to the Christian Church; by the Bible on this occasion, he would speak of the New Testament as the Bible. There were many misrepresentations put forward as to the relation between the Catholic Church and the sacred Scriptures, and many held that there were obstacles which were incompatible with each other. He would show how baseless the controversible historic facts showing how false one stood regarding the connection of the Church with the Holy Scriptures. The first fact that the Archbishop went on to elucidate was, that the Church was before them the Bible. It preceded the Scriptures, and existed in all the fullness of its prerogatives and authority when not a line of question as to the inspiration of the sacred writings. The founder of the Church made his revelations orally; he neither wrote himself nor did he commend any of the Apostles to write the doctrines which he taught. He said to them only, "go teach, go preach the Gospel to every creature." He breathed upon them, after His resurrection they began the work they were thus commissioned to do. They first taught and preached in Jerusalem, and afterward spread their teachings in Antioch, Corinth, Rome, Bologna, Constantinople, India, Gaul and elsewhere; so that it was true the sound of their voices went forth upon the earth, and those who heard and died in communion with God before the New Testament was penned. The Archbishop then proceeded to show how the epistles and gospels came to be written, collated, and pronounced to be inspired, claiming that the Catholic Church was the preserver and protector of the Bible through all ages, even in the darkest, as the inspired word of God. When the Roman Empire was overrun by barbarian hordes, the Church alone peopled until the vast solitude of ruin, while monuments of art and religion were destroyed, she alone held and preserved as her heritage the sacred Scriptures, which have come down to us today. Her records, assembled in the form of subscriptions, yet remain. The speaker then contended that, as the Church had first pronounced on the inspiration of the Bible, and preserved it through all the mutations of time, she was the only authority competent to interpret it, and that it the authority of the Church be overthrown in this respect, there is no means by which it can be determined that we have the true Scriptures at all. In closing, the Archbishop thanked his hearers for their attendance, and said that their generous charity on the occasion would win for them the earnest prayers of the widow and the orphan.

The Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was then given, Rev. Father STARRS officiating, the choir having previously sung the Pontine Hymn, and the entire congregation retired.

Roman Catholics and the Bible—Sermon by Rev. Day K. Lee.

Rev. DAY K. LEE preached at the Bleecker-street Universalist Church last evening from the seventh verse of the second chapter of Thessalonians—"For this cause also thank we God without ceasing, because, when ye received the word of God, which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but, as it is in truth, the word of God." He effectually, we think, at one in you that believe." The preacher said that the question "to whom are the Scriptures the preservation of the Bible?" is a most important one, for if the Scriptures had been given into the keeping of any other Church it meant that they had been lost, or they did not, in fact, have been preserved. It had been alleged that the Council of Trent, which met A.D. 326, had brought before them all the existing writings, or such as were supposed to be inspired, and had then, by vote, decided which should be received and which rejected. There seemed to be a tacit admission on the part of the Church, by that Council, of its relation to the Scriptures as the fifteenth century. The Bible, as such, could be easily proved from the writings of Christ's disciples. The speaker then quoted Mr. Blanc as saying that Christ was the Bible, and that the Bible was Christ. Mr. Blanc was a Roman Catholic, and a member of the Council of Trent. He was well known, Rev. Mr. Lee said, in this city, and was a man of great learning and ability. He was a man who had read the Bible, and was well versed in the Scriptures. He was a man who had read the Bible, and was well versed in the Scriptures. He was a man who had read the Bible, and was well versed in the Scriptures